The new directory puts Greater Detroit's population at 1,551,437, an increase of 162,587 in one year. The city of automobiles and flying machines grows rapidly, and so does this entire fortunate nation.

Our population increases more than 2 per cent, or about 2,000,000 a year. Business and prosperity increases twice as rapidly as population. We should be grateful.

Mexico's biggest volcano, Popocatepetl, in violent eruption, terrifies the people, and many believe, as in ancient days, that some demon or god is annoyed.

Luckily for the very common people, those that rule understand the volcano. In old days, before Columbus, native priests would have sought to pacify the god. Human victims would have had their breasts cut open with a knife or sharp stone, and their hearts held up, bleeding, toward the angry god to pacify him.

We don't yet understand all about volcanoes, but at least we know that no god or devil uses them to show his anger.

A joint legislative committee planning to modify the Volstead act at this session will probably not succeed. Prohibition will stay in the constitution until those now in the cradle are old. A determined prohibition minority would not allow a change in the Volstead law, even assuming that a majority really wants to change it.

D. L. Sharp offers, apart from virtue and morality, the best argument in favor of Volstead. He says men were not ready for prohibition, but the times and modern machinery were ready, and made prohibition necessary.

"High among the white-piled clouds above the house and the tree tops rears an airplane from Boston for New York. That pilot isn't drunk. No matter what the bibulous habits of his father might have been, the child of the sky, driving like Icarus, but uncorrupted by the sun, needs no tingling drop of alcohol to fire his courage or to steady his nerves."

That's brilliant writing, in spite of the fact, proved in the World war, that flyers between flights were often hard drinkers.

"Machinery must be dry, so must be the people who run it, those who repair it and those who build it," is Mr. Sharp's conclusion.

How to Prepare 1,095 Meals Each Year

Did you ever stop to think that the housekeeper who does her own cooking prepares 1,095 meals a year? And more than that, after these meals she washes 1,095 sets of dishes.

With such a task before her how important it is that the housewife have the benefit of every labor-saving device possible.

A kitchen cabinet will save thousands of steps; a fireless cooker permits the housekeeper to leave her food cooking without worrying about the results; a dish drainer not only saves time and labor but goes away with the too often insanitary dish towel; a serving tray lessens the trips between the dining room and kitchen both in serving and clearing away meals.

These household conveniences may be made at a moderate cost by anybody who has a few simple tools and the ability to use them. Directions are given in a government booklet which this Bureau has for free distribution. Enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.

Frederic J. Haskin, Director, The E. Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

I enclose herewith two cents in stamps for return postage on a free copy of the HOME CONVENIENCE BOOKLET.

MOTHER, THREE TOTS TRAPPED; MAN DIES OF HEART FAILURE

Flames Force 200 Tenants to Flee to Streets.

THREE INJURED

Husband Drops Dead Attempting to Rescue Invalid.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Five persons, including a mother and three of her children, lost their lives in two tenement fires here today. Mrs. Anna Falta, 34, and the three youngest members of her family, Thomas, 7; Helen, 3; and Anna, 18 months, were trapped in their room when fire swept the third floor of the house at 124 East 109th street.

George Kissner, who recently was injured in a hold-up, died from heart failure while attempting to rescue his invalid wife in a blaze at 2364 Eighth avenue.

Although neither fire did great material damage, more than 200 tenants of both houses were roused from sleep and hustled down fire escapes to the cold streets in hastily donned clothing. Both fires occurred within a short time of each other.

Mrs. Falta's husband, William, and two other sons, William and Joseph, were injured in their frantic efforts to save the woman and her babies. The fire, however, swept into an airshaft next to Mrs. Falta's room, making it impossible of entrance.

POOLROOM MAN IS FINED $50

Walter McDonald, operator of the Diamond pool room, was fined $50 and costs by Municipal Judge Hanley late yesterday afternoon upon a charge of permitting gambling.

McDonald was arrested after Patrolman Herman Roth is alleged to have interrupted a game of pea pool in the establishment Monday evening. T. H. Wilkinson, former councilman, was to appear before Judge Hanley this afternoon to answer a charge of driving through a funeral procession. He was arrested by Captain of Police Conley.

David Williamson, Erie street, will also be arraigned today upon a charge of violating the traffic ordinance by driving through a red block at the corner of Fifth street and Broadway. The arrest was made by Chief McDermott.

100,000 Mourners Pass Malines Bier Of Belgian Prelate

MALINES, Jan. 27.—More than 100,000 mourners had passed by the pier of Cardinal Mercier, when the gates of the Malines cathedral were closed at noon today in order that the body might be placed in the coffin and prepared for removal to Brussels tomorrow.

The officials of St. Gudule have received 18,000 requests for admissions to the national funeral tomorrow, but seats are only available for 5,000.

$24,000 INCOME SHRINKAGE AND $8,000 IN UNPAID BILLS FROM 1925 FACE BENEDUM ADMINISTRATION

The Benedum administration faces a reduction in revenue of approximately $24,000 this year, with an additional burden of $8,000 in unpaid bills from 1925 hanging over their heads, according to a statement issued today by Service-Safety Director John W. Moore.

The levy for the present year after state, county schools, sinking fund and other requirements have been deducted, amounts to 2.83 mills as compared to 3.20 mills for last year, the service-safety figures, obtained through City Auditor William McGraw, indicate. This means a shortage of about $24,000 in operating revenue, most of which must be borne by the service and safety departments.

Ohio Woman's Body Found In Cistern; Husband Arrested

Newcomerstown Police Investigate Death of Mrs. Harvey Haver as Federal Authorities File Charges Against Mail Carrier.

DOVER, O., Jan. 27.—A cistern murder, of which Mrs. Catherine Haver, 45, was the victim, was revealed at Newcomerstown, following the arrest by federal authorities, of her husband, Harvey Haver, Newcomerstown mail carrier, on a charge of tampering with the mails.

Following Haver's arrest, Sheriff George Stucky and deputies went to the farm of Haver's father, two and one-half miles from Newcomerstown, and found the body of the missing woman in an abandoned cistern on the farm. The body was brought to the surface with grappling hooks.

Haver told a story of an amazing suicide pact, in which he declared his wife had often told him that she planned to commit suicide and wished her last resting place to be the abandoned cistern.

Police Expect Confession
Haver is still being held in Newcomerstown pending the coroner's inquest, it was learned this afternoon. It had at first been reported that Haver would be taken to Columbus to be arraigned on a formal federal charge of tampering with the mails.

MRS. MARY KELLER "NOT GUILTY" OF MURDER; SENT TO STATE ASYLUM

Jury at Sandusky Finds Woman, Charged With Killing Little Daughter, is Insane.

SANDUSKY, O., Jan. 27.—A verdict of "not guilty because of insanity" was returned just before noon today by the jury in the case of Mrs. Mary Keller, charged with the murder of her daughter, Fay Elizabeth, 7. The verdict carries with it imprisonment in the state hospital for the insane, at Lima, O.

The jury deliberated all morning. They got the case late yesterday, after Judge Fissinger completed his charge.

The body of the little girl was found in a cabin near East Sandusky last November.

The mother was arrested shortly afterwards. In police court she confessed her guilt, declaring she killed the girl because she did not want her to face the kind of life she had to face—poor, without love and with constant family bickering.

KIWANIANS ENTERTAIN LADIES WITH DINNER, MUSIC AND DANCE

A roast turkey dinner, served by Caterer Daly Larkins and his aides, a program of dancing, readings, music, including instrumental and vocal selections, solo and group numbers, humor and typical conviviality combined to form a successful entertainment for Kiwanians, their wives and friends at last night's ladies' night meeting in the Larkins restaurant annex, Market street.

Approximately 100 persons occupied places about the four long banquet tables, with President and Mrs. C. C. Cline and Secretary and Mrs. C. E. Gruber seated at the head table from whence President Cline directed the program.

A departure from the festive spirit of the occasion occurred immediately before the guests were seated when President Cline asked that the memory of the late Rev. Lionel C. Difford, rector of the St. Stephen's Episcopal church, be honored by a moment of silence, which guests did, with heads bowed.

As the assembly was seated, Prof.

Dolly Madison Was Flapper in Modern Sense, Woman Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Dolly Madison was a "flapper" in the modern sense, according to Mrs. Harry Atwood Colman.

"Had Dolly Madison lived today," said Mrs. Colman, addressing the Susan B. Anthony Foundation, "she undoubtedly would have been called a flapper. She was frivolous, dipped snuff, used rouge, and played cards for high stakes."

On the other hand, Mrs. Colman said, Martha Washington was quiet and demure.

$4,000 QUOTA IN BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN IN SIGHT AT NOON

Police authorities expected to draw a confession of murder from Haver before night. They said the man, since his arrest, has changed his story of the finding of his wife's body in the cistern and he is momentarily expected to admit that he murdered Mrs. Haver.

He now says that on December 1 he came home and found the body of his wife hanging from the rafters in the basement of their home. He said that he buried her in the cistern in the back of the house, conforming to the wishes of Mrs. Haver who had often remarked that she wanted the cistern to be her final resting place.

The body of the woman, clad in a soiled nightgown, was dragged from beneath a large barrel in the cistern. Deterioration had set to work and the body was in bad condition due to three weeks in the damp of the cistern. It may be somewhat difficult to learn by an examination of the body, how the woman met her death.

Woman Missing Since Dec. 1
Mrs. Haver disappeared from her home December 1. Haver told friends she had deserted him, and on January 18 followed this with filing of a suit for divorce, alleging that his wife had attacked him with a poker, burned valuable clothing and constantly nagged him.

The federal investigation began when relatives of the woman residing in Pennsylvania were unable to obtain word from her. Letters to her remained unanswered, but Haver, post office inspectors said, wrote them he did not "know where in hell she had gone."

Approximately $3,000 of the $4,000 quota assigned the East Liverpool-Chester-Newton district in the $10,000 Columbiana County Boy Scout fund for 1926, had been subscribed at noon today, and indications were that the goal would be reached before evening.

Approximately 75 merchants, professional men and manufacturers are taking part in the campaign which was launched when the workers met for dinner at the Y. M. C. A. last night. Prospective contributors who are being interviewed in the solicitation for funds number about 2,100.

Early reports reaching the county Boy Scout headquarters in the election board office in the Betz building, this morning, were that but few refusals were met by the campaigners.

T. E. Lewis, Campaign Chief.
A majority of the contributions were reported to be in cash, but some of the larger gifts were in pledges, due in most cases not later than June 1.

The workers have been divided into two sides—one in charge of Dr. Roy R. Bode and the other headed by Attorney Walter Stevenson. Dr. Bode has 10 teams under his direction, while Mr. Stevenson's division is made up of nine teams.

Campaign Chairman T. E. Lewis presided at the dinner last evening. He explained the plan of the campaign briefly. Harry Wilson, county scout executive, submitted the county budget.

"We should have at least 600 Boy Scouts in East Liverpool," said Mr. Lewis. "A survey of the schools and churches in this district shows that at least 500 boys have signified their eagerness to be come affiliated with Boy Scout troops. If only half of that number take the scout pledge we will have been doubly repaid for efforts in this work."

Mrs. David Southall Is Beneficiary of War Risk Insurance

Mrs. David Southall, Lincoln highway, has been advised that she is the beneficiary of a war risk insurance policy taken out by her brother, Oliver Kent, former resident of West Virginia, who died in an army training camp during the World war.

Mrs. Southall was located here by officers of East Liverpool post No. 4, American Legion. Ray T. Adam, commander of the post, received a letter from Dr. M. D. Ryan, of Hinton, W. Va., a few days ago, asking him to find Mrs. Emma Southall, who was last heard of from East Liverpool.

The physician stated that Oliver Kent, brother of Mrs. Southall, who died in the service, had named her as the beneficiary of his insurance, and that government officials were anxious to communicate with her.

The sister was not aware that she had been named the beneficiary in the policy. Mr. Adam has notified Dr. Ryan of Mrs. Southall's address and the insurance payment probably will be made within the next few weeks.

COLONEL SENDS CRYPTIC NOTE, SETTING FEB. 1 AS RETIREMENT DATE

Washington Expects Secretary of War Davis and President Coolidge Will Promptly Comply With Wishes of Airman to Quit Service Following Court-Martial Sentence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Col. Billy Mitchell climaxed his 28 years' service in the army today by resigning. Refusing to accept the five years' suspension imposed by a court-martial that convicted him of violating army rules in his criticisms of his superiors, the stormy petrel of the air service took the only avenue of escape and decided to quit.

He will step out on Feb. 1, freed of the "gag" imposed upon him by his jury of generals, and free to continue his fight for a greater air service.

His resignation followed President Coolidge's approval of the court-martial sentence. It is expected that the resignation will be promptly accepted by Secretary of War Davis and President Coolidge. The resignation was submitted in a single cryptic sentence: "I hereby tender my resignation as an officer in the United States army to take effect February 1, 1926. Signed, William Mitchell."

It was dispatched to the adjutant general of the army to the commanding officer of the district.

Will Press Air Service Fight.
In approving the court-martial sentence, President Coolidge restored half of Mitchell's pay and all of his allowances for subsistence. Under this ruling, Mitchell, though stripped of rank and command, would be subject to war department discipline.

Restoration of his pay was at the pleasure of the president. Under these restrictions, Mitchell felt that he would be hindered in pressing his fight for a preeminent air service, and decided therefore that he best could work for aviation outside the army.

Withholds Comment.
Until the resignation is accepted by the secretary of war and the president, Mitchell did not feel "free" to make any statement. His technical position is still that of an officer undergoing punishment.

Secretary of War Davis has already stated he would approve Mitchell's resignation, and President Coolidge's acquiescence is believed merely a matter of form.

The resignation will be accepted "for the good of the service," that being the time-honored phrase used in resignations of officers from the military establishment.

Expect Hot Statement.
Once this resignation is actually accepted, and Col. Mitchell is, as his friends term it, "a free man," is expected to make a hot statement.

Boy Walks 25 Miles to School; Pays With Bull

Onelda, Ky.—J. R. Burns and a few associates founded an institute here a few years ago, where educational opportunities were few.

When the school opened this fall, Burns says, a boy walked from Leslie county, 25 miles away, leading a two-year-old bull, which was all he had to pay his tuition and other expenses. The institute accepted him.

Later a six-year-old girl rode a mule from her home in the same county 42 miles from the school. She had nothing to offer as payment for her schooling except the promise of a pig that would be given to the institute.

A fourteen-year-old girl walked six miles to the school, where she explained that her father did not believe in education, but she wanted to learn to be a teacher.

Boy Scouts Have Authority of Congress to Wear Uniforms

President Coolidge is Honorary Chieftain of Organization Which Has Federal Charter.

The Boy Scouts of America has a federal charter and given permanent protection by an act of congress passed June 15, 1916. It is the only boys' organization having authority of congress to wear the uniform. It shares in this right under the army, navy, the marine corps, the national guard and the naval militia. These six alone have the right to continuously wear the khaki uniform. This fact is not generally known.

The Boy Scout movement had passed the experimental stage and the organization had proved its worth before congress passed the law mentioned above. The act of congress, approved by the president of the United States, officially confirms the statement made. This movement is recognized as a national asset.

Besides affixing his signature to the act of congress, the president has personally endorsed the Boy Scouts of America. In a part of one of his statements he says:

"Anything that is done or given to increase the efficiency of the Boy Scouts of America is a real contribution to the Nation."

Scouting has made good. Scouting works.

National Organization. Authority of and for the Boy Scouts of America is vested in its national council, which is made up of representatives who come from the chartered local councils.

The honorary president of the national organization is the president, Calvin Coolidge. The honorary vice-presidents are William Howard Taft and Daniel Carter Beard. The president in active charge is Colin H. Livingston, of Washington, D. C.; the treasurer is George Pratt; the chief scout executive is James E. West.

The Scout Executive. The executive and administrative head of the local council is known as the scout executive. The scout executive is a salaried official. He devotes his time entirely to the work of the Boy Scouts in Columbiana county. The executive has run the different courses of instruction by which these men were themselves trained to become scoutmasters.

No man can serve as a scout executive until he has been commissioned for that work by the national council. The personnel of leadership in the Boy Scouts of America is not a haphazard, easy-going group. It has standards by which the leaders must abide just the same as the boys have for their work in the movement.

Altruistic Idea Plot Basis Of 'Ladies of Evening'

Belasco Play, Staged in Masterly Manner, Comes to Ceramic Theatre Next Thursday.

In "Ladies of the Evening" which David Belasco will present at the Ceramic theater, Thursday, January 28, for one night only, the author, Milton Herbert Gropper, takes for the basis of his plot the altruistic idea that very few of the young women of the streets are so depraved that they will not readily go on the straight road again if given proper encouragement and wholesome environment. He maintains that most of the girls who go astray are unfortunate in home life or in lack of ability to find occupation that will give them a decent livelihood. He believes that it is the duty of everyone to help such girls to go straight.

In "Ladies of the Evening" the story revolves around the experiment of an artist, who holds such a theory. He meets a young woman of the town and offers her a position as a model in his studio, which she accepts. We see the girl after some few months. A wonderful change has been wrought in her, though she does not perceive it herself. The contact with a decent man who has grown to love her and whom she has, although unknown to herself, also grown to love, has remade her spiritually. The interesting experiment is broken up by the visit of one of her old companions who informs her that the artist cares nothing for her; that she is merely the subject of an experiment. In a rage at being made as she thinks, the mere cause of a wager, she rushes from the studio to resume her old life. The change has been too great, however, and she finds she cannot face it. Her soul has had an awakening that will not permit her to do so. She is compelled to go straight.

As may be expected of Mr. Belasco, the play is staged in a masterly manner, every detail of the production being given the most meticulous care. On the roster of the company are Leslie Austen, Vernon Steele, H. Dudley Hawley, Dudley Clements, John Carmody, Bernard McGowan, Joe Yovin, Beth Merrill, Edna Hibbard, Marion Morehouse and Fay Cusick.

Mae Murray Stars In "Merry Widow" at Ceramic Theatre

Mae Murray and originality are synonymous in the minds of motion picture theatregoers, who look forward with unusual interest to each new picture in which the bizarre little actress appears.

And Miss Murray always keeps faith.

But in "The Merry Widow," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, now at the Ceramic theatre, Miss Murray's touch of originality is expressed in a totally different way. To be sure, it is evident in the costumes, her method of expression and dances just as surely as before, but it is also exerted in the character she creates as well. The role of the pert little chorus girl who arrives in Montebello as one of the members of a stranded theatrical troupe, and in staying here becomes the richest woman in Europe, and in the end the queen of the country, gives Miss Murray the best opportunity of her career, which she grasps to its fullest extent.

As well as the dashing, flashing creature theatregoers love so well, a new figure of heartfelt appeal appears in Miss Murray's portrayal of the title role. For all of her bizarre quality she has more human appeal than in some of her past pictures. The naturalness of the story, even with all its color and glamor, makes her characterization pull a little harder at the heart strings. In portraying the difficult role Miss Murray affords theatregoers a new insight into her histrionic ability.

"The Merry Widow" was directed by Erich von Stroheim for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The noted director made the adaptation and prepared the scenario with Benjamin Glazer from the famous stage play by Victor Leon, Leo Stein and Franz Lehar.

METHUSELAH'S WIFE

THE STORY OF A GIRL EDGAR POE NOVELS WHO MARRIED FOR MONEY

FIFTY-SEVEN.

Noble Harwood, his face drawn, his eyes haggard, mounted the stairs of Harwood House, and listened, motionless, at the door of his wife's suite. Downstairs, the great grandfather's clock, ticking rhythmically in the silence, held up its hands at seven, and bathed them in the morning sunlight flashing through the high windows on the east side of the mansion.

As was usual on Sunday morning, no one was astir at this hour in Harwood House, and he had entered unobserved.

No sound came to his ear through the door crevice, and he went on into his own suite. After he had taken off his coat and hat, he walked through his den into his wife's sitting-room, and carefully opened the door to her boudoir. She was lying there, relaxed in sleep, the covers tumbled over her beautiful body, now daphnaceously clad in a costly garment of silk he had chosen himself. For several minutes he stood there like a statue, gazing at her, then he tiptoed toward the bed.

Now, his self-centeredness subdued, he was feeling very badly over the night's events. He had, he decided, acted like a cad, and he wanted so much to make amends. Should he awaken her and plead for forgiveness? No, her poor, tired body needed rest. He would wait.

Having had no sleep to assuage its weariness, his body was aching. He slumped down by the side of her bed, and his eyes closed in heavy sleep.

The hardness of the floor, the uncomfortable position of his body—his head was propped up against the wall—made no difference now.

It was a strange scene that filled Ella's eyes when she came into her mistress' boudoir at nine o'clock in the morning. Of all amazing things! The master asleep on the floor beside his wife's bed! In the face of such a situation, what was she to do? It was too much for her to decide. On tiptoe she departed, and when the door was securely closed behind her, ran down the back stairs to the servant's hall two steps at a time, bursting with news for Louis.

The butler, when he heard the maid's story, was stirred out of his usual calm. It was too much for him, too. He sat down and stared at Ella. What would Mrs. Harwood the first make of this?

At exactly the same hour, Operative Michael Finnerton of the Star Private Secret Service, was painfully typing with two fingers a report of Mrs. Harwood's hectic movements. If this was a sample of the sort of trailing he was going to have to do, he would need several assistants, and he intended to tell Mrs. Mary Farr Harwood so.

A few minutes before 10 o'clock, Laurel awakened suddenly from a troubled dream. She sat up in bed and thought immediately of her promise to Alice Kenwick to come over in the morning. She reached for her bell-cord to signal Ella, and—what was this? Heavy breathing! Now she stood upon the bed. There was a man in the room? As her figure reared up upon the sheets, she could get a glimpse of the man's body, and recognized the disheveled features of her husband.

A queer feeling in her throat, she slumped down again, and gazed at the intruder. Her head was aching. How dare he come here after last night! "Noble! . . . NOBLE!" She got down from the bed and burrowed a bare foot into his ribs.

In his sleep he tried to push it away, but she persisted. His eyes opened, and he stared up at her, then at the floor. "Um . . ."

He had, of course, come in here while drunk. Of this she was certain. "Shall I have Burnham come and help you into your room?"

Noble raised himself on elbow. "No, I can get up." He pulled himself up slowly, his eyes upon her. "Oh! A hand shot back to his neck; there was a 'crick' there. The other hand went to his side, where there was a pain of bending intensity.

"Whatever possessed you to sleep there?" she asked coldly.

"I—I came in to see you, and I guess I went to sleep." He caught her by the hand. "Sit down a minute, dear." He pulled her down on the bed beside him.

"Dearest, I'm a terrible cad. Please forgive me for last night, please." A note of pleading new to her was in his voice, but she was not moved. "I most humbly apologize to you." "What are you going to do about Harry Yancey?"

"Oh, he'll apologize to Alice all right."

"And you think that fixes things?" "I—" Some of his humbleness disappeared. He was sorry; he expected her to accept his attitude and relent.

"I don't think he intended to do what he did; he wasn't responsible; Alice will understand, I think."

Laurel smiled grimly, and shook her head. "Noble," she said after a moment, "why has Harry Yancey such a strong, blinding hold over you? Can't you see him for what he is? Do you think that if you weren't the most powerful man in Central City that he would be so FAITHFUL a FRIEND? . . . Noble, I cannot, as hostess ever receive Harry Yancey again. Or his wife, either. You must choose between him and me."

Death of Rev L. C. Difford

After a year's fight against the ravages of disease, during which he bore with great patience his suffering, the Rev. Lionel C. Difford, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, died in his home in West Fourth street yesterday, thus marking the passing of a second East Liverpool minister of the gospel within less than two weeks.

Like the Rev. William H. Clark, late pastor of the Emmanuel Presbyterian church, whose death occurred on January 15, less than 24 hours after he was stricken with paralysis, the Rev. Mr. Difford, by his humility, his keen interest in the welfare of his neighbor and his willingness to help lighten the burden of those in sorrow, as well as his broadminded nature, had endeared himself to the people of the district.

Under his leadership great strides were made by St. Stephen's parish during the past six years. And notable among the accomplishments, in which he played an important part, was the erection of a parish house which cost approximately $40,000.

Notwithstanding the many duties that fell to his lot by reason of his close attention to the work of his parish, he was a student of civic affairs, while he was also active in the Kiwanis club of which he was a member.

His death is a great loss to the community.

Biological Reactions

Maybe the psychologists were right in the "modern Solomon case" in Detroit, and maybe they weren't. A calm bystander may doubt the wisdom of the Solomonian judgment rendered, with the aid of moving pictures, in this case of two women wanting the same baby.

There was no question of maternity, as in the original case. One woman was admitted to be the natural mother of the child, and the other the foster mother. The question was, which ought to have the child?

The court awarded it to the foster mother, who had cared for it most of the time since its birth, on the recommendation of the psychologists. They, after studying the films made by concealed movie cameras, agreed that the foster mother showed "a much more marked biological emotional reaction" than the natural mother when threatened with loss of the child.

As remarked above, that may have been the right decision. But emotions are not always a good criterion. The woman who cries most easily may not make the best mother. And almost any child shows a "marked biological emotional reaction" when deprived of candy that isn't good for it.

The Mexican Train Robbers

A recent train robbery in Mexico drew passing notice as "another Mexican outbreak," the sort of thing to expect of Mexicans, and was promptly forgotten. It deserved more attention than that, for two reasons.

First reason: The bandits, on entering the train, asked all the Americans present to step forward, then left them unharmed and unrobbed, except for one pistol, which the bandit chief took with profuse apologies.

Second reason: The murderous band was rounded up by Mexican troops, many of them were killed in the fight and the eight prisoners taken were tried, sentenced and executed within 24 hours.

Mexicans do cut up unpleasantly now and then. Americans have often suffered from their depredations. But here is a new kind of behavior, on the part of bandits and authorities alike.

Just suppose, now, that this had been an American train, with some Mexicans aboard, held up in American territory by American bandits.

The 1925 Coin Drop

Tis is indeed a "money-making country." In 1925 United States mints turned out 308,646,886 American coins. There were 10,124,750 pieces of gold, 63,342,036 of silver, 46,271,100 of nickel and 188,180,000 of bronze—our "copper" pennies.

The mints also made money for foreign lands. A total of more than 6,000,000 coins were manufactured for Poland, Peru, Guatemala, Venezuela and Salvador.

It looks like easy money, but all those coins have to be paid for with human labor or natural resources. Just as a stack of metal discs they may be said to take up more room than they are worth. It is what they represent and how they are used that makes them important to civilization.

Child Marriages

Child marriages are usually thought of as occurring only in Asia, or in the more backward European countries.

A representative of the Women's Protective association finds that in Ohio, which has imagined that it had good marriage laws, it is easier for a girl of 14 or 15 to get married than to get a job. For the job, she has to have a working permit, and she has to prove that she is 16 before she obtains it. She can obtain a marriage license without proving her age.

In how many other states is this true?

Heaven help the Caesars of the senate if the nation's taxes not cut before the Ides of March!

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Airplane Weather Observations.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 27.—The Weather Bureau is enthusiastic over the results obtained by weather observations from aeroplanes and has requested that they be increased in number and regularity. This is made known in a news bulletin issued by the Navy Department.

Heretofore, observations have been made during the week and were omitted Saturday and Sunday, but Lieut. Com. H. C. Wick, commanding officer of the naval air station at Anacostia, soon will inaugurate daily observation flights.

Weather observations by aeroplane were begun at the Anacostia station last June. They have been of great value to the Weather Bureau as they further the work of collecting information from the upper air. At first, observations were taken from the surface only, which, although useful and instructive to the country at large, were not sufficient to make for excellence in weather forecasting.

It soon was realized that the absence of information concerning the conditions of the upper air was a serious handicap. Action was taken as rapidly as possible to establish stations and bases where the upper air might be sounded, even as a mariner sounds the sea or a river pilot the channel. These observations were installed and the process begun about 25 years ago.

Kites were first used in the work and afterward balloons were introduced. Through these agencies accurate measurements and data are collected concerning temperature, wind velocity and direction, and moisture, at given altitudes. These observations serve two purposes. They provide material for forecasts and furnish data for special studies.

In fulfilling the first purpose, observations from balloons only are used. These are made twice a day and are computed quickly and telegraphed to various forecast stations throughout the country, where they are charted on maps which represent different altitudes. They are used as a basis in making aviation forecasts. Likewise, besides their dissemination by telephone and telegraph these forecasts are broadcast by radio from Washington, Chicago and San Francisco twice daily.

Research for Special Studies.

In carrying out the second purpose, that of research for special studies, observations obtained by kites and different types of balloons are computed and catalogued. Studies of these data are made with a view of increasing the information concerning the characteristics of the air and the laws that govern storm movements. This increases the bases for forecasting. There is published each month in the Monthly Weather Review a summary of upper air conditions over the country and there also appears at various times in this magazine or in the aeronautical journals the important work of this branch of the Weather Bureau.

The new plan will further the work of collecting data from the upper air. About 7:30 every morning a specially equipped and prepared plane will hop off with a pilot and a passenger. The passenger will be an aerological observer. The plane will have a self-recording instrument called an aerograph or meteorograph which will be exposed above the wing so that it gives continuous readings of temperature, humidity and pressure.

The aerological observer will make notes on the air conditions, such as clouds, that are not recorded by the aerograph. Many queer things often occur in these upper strata. At times when the air on the ground is oppressively hot and sultry, cool refreshing currents are to be found only a few thousand feet up, while at other times when pedestrians are chafing their hands and stamping their feet in order to fight the frigid temperature, gentle, warm, summer breezes are met with only a short space from the earth.

As weather forecasts are determined largely by temperatures in the upper air and by the moisture that is there, it is palpable that such observations will be of great value to the weather man.

After flights such as the one described are completed, the observations are rapidly compiled and the computations obtained through them telephoned to the Weather Bureau and the aerological section of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics. Forecasters display considerable enthusiasm about such observations. Meteorologists repeatedly have asked that more be made and that the service be extended generally.

Value of Weather Bureau.

Few people realize just what it means in dollars and cents to the United States to have a Weather Bureau which is the most efficient in the world. Temperature forecasts and warnings of bad weather are followed closely by business men all over the country. The maker of ice cream knows that if the next day is to be a hot one he must increase his output, because the demand will be greater. If a cold wave comes he decreases his output for the demand will be less.

With the cold wave prediction greenhouses are closed and boilers fired in anticipation. The great stockyards drain their mains. Gasoline engines are emptied. Concrete work ceases. Ice factories cut down their output and take steps for the protection of exposed ammonia condensers. The railroads arrange for more heat in vegetable and fruit cars, and less ice in meat and butter and egg cars. The natural gas companies increase the amount of gas flowing into their pipes. Merchants reduce their advertising space, anticipating a great number of stay-at-homes. The coal dealers distribute their coal carefully. If the cold wave is predicted as of long duration. The dredging of sand and gravel is stopped and iron ore piled for shipment is placed in the holds of ships to prevent the bulk from freezing into a solid mass. The charity organizations of the country prepare to help the poor.

These are examples of how the Weather Bureau reaches the people directly and its chief, Charles F. Marvin, declares that its scope will widen. The new readings of the upper air are an example of how it is broadening.

It is a far cry from the days when Professor Cleveland Abbe, one of the pioneer meteorologists of the United States, who was connected with the Weather Bureau in its earliest efforts, was scoffed at for his vague predictions, to the present day when exact forecasts are made. And when the new plan is put into effect, accurate observations, which tell many tales, will be available to forecasters every morning except when the weather is so bad that planes cannot possibly take the air.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Broadway to the death! Misfortune and ill-health will not drive mothers from the scorching flame. A tipsy tubercular girl at the Equity ball hiccoughed at dawn: "They tried to park me in an Arizona tent but I came back for a blow off at Campbells"—a Broadway funeral parlor.

A show girl for eight months in a plaster cast as result of a fall after a wild party celebrated her return in a cafe by waving a champagne glass and shouting: "Deaucoup song and a lot of laughter. I'm gyrating again!" And she still is.

The other night a blonde in a salmon cloak drifted into a super club alone. She had been that day to a doctor for his verdict. And got it. Five weeks to get her house in order. "Dish me up a quart in a pretty nickel-bound bucket," she told the waiter. "I'm going out with a laugh!" The old waiter puckered up his knobby brow. He didn't understand. She remained until daylight and scattered tips about like confetti. Two weeks later she died. There recently arrived from Shanghai an old gambler facing the last turn of the dice. He wanted to see Broadway once more.

Fifteen years ago at Delmonico's a rich bachelor and boulevardier sat as host at a glittering white oval table. There was an expensive gift at each plate, much wine and the chorus of a musical revue at midnight. "I'm going on a long journey," said the host simply. "And this is my farewell!"

The following week he leaped from a steamer in mid-ocean. Of course, there are those failures who cling on to life. They sell newspapers and sometimes beg. No buffeting by fell circumstance can loose their hold. They hope some day to be back in the swim.

To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to make. Saves about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup. To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—infamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs. Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for ½ ounce of Pinex with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

WIFE DESERTS STRANGLER OF MEDIA WOMAN

Philadelphia Chiropractor Dejectedly Faces Speedy Trial

PACES HIS CELL

Charged With Killing Milliner and Cutting up Body.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—Dr. David L. Marshall, the "strangling chiropractor," today dejectedly faced the grim prospect of quickly paying the full price for the ghastly murder of Anna Mae Dietrich.

Deserted by his wife who "never wanted to see him again" and scorned by his former friends, Marshall, who confessed he carved the Dietrich girl's body to pieces, paced his cell nervously this morning as the authorities went forward with their plans to bring him to a speedy trial.

The 42-year-old chiropractor was to be arraigned today on the charge of murder in the first degree. He is charged with having killed Miss Dietrich, a 34-year-old milliner, dismembering her body in his offices and then hiding the torso and legs near the Rouse Tree Hunt club, near Media, Pa., where they were found Thursday.

"Jazz Complex" Explanation

A "jazz complex," which made the girl harass him, was one of his explanations for the murder. "She wanted me to take her to roadhouses and cabarets," he said, "and I was afraid my wife would find out. She wanted to take a whirl at night life before she was too old."

Marshall's wife, who had remained loyal to him until he confessed, has deserted him. With her daughter and mother, she has left the Marshall home in Bywood Heights.

Before leaving she is said to have told a doctor, who was a former friend of her husband, that she is "through" with her husband—that she won't spend a penny for his defense.

Mrs. Marshall had insisted that her husband was innocent until he admitted that he had not only dissected Miss Dietrich's body, but also had crushed out her life with his powerful fingers. As a chiropractor's wife, she had said, she could understand why he feared to have body found in his office and therefore decided to carve it up so that he could dispose of it more easily.

Jealousy Cited as Motive

Relatives of the dead girl cite jealousy of another man, with robbery as a contributing cause, as the real motives behind the gruesome crime. Alex L. Schuhl, brother-in-law of the dead woman, said Miss Dietrich had $75 in cash, a $300 diamond ring and a signet ring worth $90 when she was last seen alive. He pointed out that these were missing when the body was found.

Authorities took the chiropractor over the "murder route" merely, they said, to check up on details of the confession made by Marshall.

"The state is certain it has a first degree murder case," declared District Attorney Fox after he had reviewed the details of the ghastly crime with his assistants. Fox was in court early this morning prepared to demand a quick trial for the slayer.

$24,000 Found Shortage

council must pass an appropriation measure carrying an amount for the safety department less than the combined salaries of the police and fire department, to say nothing of other expenses such as motor maintenance, repairs, sustenance of prisoners, fuel, light, supplies and other items incident to the operation of these departments. It cost last year, in round numbers, $4,000 per month to take care of the safety department and this year there is in sight but $36,000 or $3,000 per month, which is sufficient to run the department approximately eight months.

"The service fund is singularly reduced but may worry through by reducing activities with the gas tax in anticipation, which the law specifies, must be used only for street purposes. Not a dollar of automobile license money or gasoline tax money can be appropriated to the safety department as the law is mandatory that it be used for street purposes. The automobile license fund is encumbered to the extent of $10,800 as a result of the Mulberry street and the West Elkhurst street improvements, which this year's funds must pay.

Council's Card On Table.

"Council is placing the cards on the table that the people may know just where the city stands. No curtailment or crippling of the police or fire departments is contemplated for three or four months, or until developments show no alternative. No anticipation of funds from the receipts of the municipal court are represented in the figures given. Should it prove extremely remunerative it will, of course, help out. If it should not more than pay it way for somewhere near a year the safety department cannot function as now throughout the year. There is no other source of revenue that can be diverted to this fund. Everyone at all familiar with conditions knows there is no legitimate margin to trim either police or fire fighting forces to operating expenses of the city. Under the new law passed by the legislature we must pay as we go. If we have no money to pay we cannot go. It is the people's problem, and the people are entitled to know the facts as herewith given."

GOV. DONAHEY HAS HIGHEST REGARD FOR STATE UNIVERSITY, HE SAYS

Girl Writer Learns There Isn't Great Deal of Lawlessness, if Any, at Ohio's Great Educational Institution.

(Editor's Note—The following is the article by Katharine Brush on moral conditions at Ohio State university.)

By KATHARINE BRUSH.

In my extreme youth, one teacher was enough to terrify me almost out of my wits, and I'm very sure that if anybody had told me then that I would ever take luncheon with between 900 and 1,000 teachers I should have fainted on the spot from sheer fright. But the other day I did take luncheon with just about that many, and liked it—in fact I found it one of the most interesting experiences I had while conducting my little survey of manners and morals at Ohio State university.

One of the largest and most imposing of all the large, imposing structures which line the university campus is the administration building, where the president and his staff have their offices. The third floor of this building is devoted to the use of members of the faculty. Here they have their reception rooms and club rooms, and here, in a huge hall dotted with little round tables and flooded with sunlight, they take their noon meal. Between 12 and 2 on any weekday the place is crowded, and a glance around it gives one a satisfied feeling, a belief that there can be nothing rotten in the state of Denmark as long as Denmark is ruled by men and women like these. The men, of course, are in the great majority, a majority of almost 60 to 1. Some of them are quite old and gray, others so young that they look like students grown serious. And they all sit around the little tables, eating and talking and smoking, even as you and I.

He Looks The Part.

It was in this room that I first beheld President Rightmire, a tall, lean gentleman with gold-bowed spectacles. At the moment when my eyes first rested upon him he was consuming a baked pork chop, but this did not detract from his dignity nor from his air of being absorbed in matters of the gravest importance. Dr. Rightmire has been acting president of Ohio State for only about two months, having succeeded the beloved Dr. Thompson, who resigned in November. If one can judge by externals, he will serve well, for he looks like a college president, acts like one, talks like one. I know, because he was good enough to talk to me.

Our conversation took place in his office. This is a big room paneled in highly polished wood and guarded by two secretaries whose motto seems to be, "They shall not pass." It took me an hour, but I did it, and sat there feeling a little like a sophomore about to be expelled. The president spoke briefly, clipping off his sentences. He said that the university was large, and its student body scattered all over the city, and that unfortunate circumstances occasionally arose. He said that miscreants were always punished when discovered and always would be, and that it was regrettable the matter had to be attended by so much unfavorable publicity.

He said the committee appointed at the governor's suggestion, consisting of three of the trustees and himself, would continue its investigation until such time as the college was rid of any students who might be undesirable. He declined to hazard a guess as to the number of wrong-doers who might be found, but he implied that he did not expect them to be very numerous. "And that," he concluded, "is all I can say at this time."

Dean Gives Views.

I talked to Miss Jessica Foster, a kindly, sweet-faced woman, quite young, who has lately been installed as dean of women. Miss Foster said that the rumors regarding conditions at State had been grossly exaggerated and that it was a great pity. Similar statements came in tones of varying indignation from every instructor and every student to whom I talked.

"Well," I thought, "that's the school attitude. Now let's see what the citizens of Columbus have to say." I consulted several of them. One said, "There's a little drinking and a little petting, and all that. But not much. I don't think the students cut up anywhere near as badly as the girls and boys around town do." Another said, "Oh, you hear a lot of stories, but they're mostly gossip. Those kids as a whole are fine." And so on.

At last I went to Governor Donahey. He it was who had demanded the housecleaning at O. S. U. Why had he considered a housecleaning necessary, if all was as circumspect around the campus as the students and faculty and general public claimed? I wanted to ask him. So I procured an appointment, waited half an hour in a vast, beautiful antechamber carpeted in crimson with paintings of former Ohio governors on the walls, and finally was ushered into his office.

The governor was seated at a big carved desk. He motioned me to a chair opposite him, and beamed in a jovial sort of way through a pair of shell-rims. My acquaintance among governors is not what you could call extensive, but Mr. Donahey seemed to me to be a particularly nice, human governor. I wasn't half as afraid of him as I had been of Dr. Rightmire, and when he asked me if this was my third year at the university (the office was poorly lighted of course) I at once was all for having him re-elected.

He said: "I have the highest possible regard for Ohio State University. I think it is a splendid institution, and I personally know nothing as to the truth or falsehood of these rumors. I simply know that the rumors are afloat. So I say, let us investigate them. If there is any lawlessness at the university, let's get rid of it! Let's stamp it out! If there is none, let's tell the people of Ohio that there is none, and be able to tell them so with authority."

"I'm not able, nor anyone else, to tell you with authority that there is

Daylight Saving Torture Time.
Editor, Review-Tribune:
Dear Sir—In the East Liverpool Review-Tribune issue of last Saturday, I took notice that the Chamber of Commerce endorsed the Daylight Saving time. This move was made, no doubt, with all diplomacy in favor of the Industrial Baseball league. I think baseball is one of our cleanest games and it is enjoyed by the great majority of people, but for the sake of this pleasure, we ought not torture ourselves in other respects. I, by no means, wish to be antagonistic, nor be a faultfinder, but I think we have plenty of sufferings without adding to them. I shall give my views regarding the Daylight Saving time, which may be accepted or rejected, by any or all, according to their merits or demerits.

First point. The present time, of this locality, is already almost a half hour faster than sun time, and by advancing the clocks one hour our time would be almost an hour and a half ahead of sun time. At Cincinnati, O., the regular time is one hour slower than our present time, but that city, being so much further west, with its regular time, is almost a half hour slower than sun time, and by advancing the clocks there would make the new time only about a half hour faster than sun time.

Second point. One very disagreeable feature of winter time is rising before daylight. The days are growing longer now and many of us who were obliged to rise before daylight during the dreary winter are now beginning to rise at the dawn of day, which seems so much easier and more cheerful than rising in total darkness. By advancing the clocks one hour would throw us back into that disagreeable feature of winter again by rising in darkness. To me it seems like a drowning man getting his head above water and some one pushing him under again. Why torture ourselves without gain?

Third point. Many wives and mothers now rise at 5 o'clock, and why should they be obliged to rise at 4 o'clock, our present time? It is true, the favorites of Daylight Saving time offer a substitute by maintaining that when the time is advanced one hour people will retire one hour earlier. This sounds all right in theory but it does not work out so well in practice. Nature cannot be changed so easily. I usually retire at 10 o'clock, but when very tired I sometimes retire at 9. I retire at 9, but I first fall asleep at the regular time, 10 o'clock. It would take nature almost to the time of setting the clock back in the fall to adjust itself to go to sleep earlier. Furthermore, during the extreme weather in the summer time few, if any, are able to retire until after midnight, and in that event everybody needs the early cool morning hours in which to snatch the much needed sleep and rest in order to withstand the burning heat of the next day. According to the new time we would have to sacrifice one of those cool morning soothing hours by rising one hour earlier.

Fourth point. Why should the clocks be disturbed? Why not let the clocks as they are and let the owners of factories or stores start one hour earlier and quit an hour earlier, if their employees want it so? I think I can give a solution of the question. The ones in favor of the Daylight Saving time know very well that, unless the clocks are changed, few would want to start work earlier. The people must first of all be blindfolded or deceived by advancing the clocks, making them believe it is all the same as to whether one retires one hour earlier and rises one hour earlier or retires one hour later and rises one hour later. As I pointed out above, this retreating and rising earlier and retreating and rising one hour later is not so easily done.

Fifth point. I have taken notice that, in the past years, baseball games in this locality are postponed from the early part of the afternoon to later in the evening to avoid the extreme heat, why then rise so early in order to quit early to go to the ball game? Sixth point. Stores are in town to do business, and in order to do business they must be arranged so as to accommodate the public. Many out-of-town people come to East Liverpool in the afternoon, seldom in the forenoon, for the sake of shopping, and if the stores are closed one hour earlier there will be little or no time left in which to buy. To me it seems that business people who close their stores earlier in the afternoon saw off the very limbs on which they are sitting.

Why not let the good old sun regulate the time for us, as of old, and let the gentle morning dawn awaken us from our sweet slumbers. Instead of the cruel hammer of the alarm clock shock our nerves in beating away on the bell until we respond by forcing ourselves out of bed in the darkness of the early morning hour.

A number of East Liverpool men, who were members of Company E of the regiment which saw service in Cuba during the Spanish-American war will attend the reunion to be known as "The Ceremony of the Colors."

Two East Liverpool men will take part in the program, James Dewar will speak as a representative of the band while William H. Kinsey of this city will share honors with W. S. Cook, Pittsburgh, as the speaking representative for Company E at the evening meeting which will be in the form of a banquet at Memorial hall.

Kinsey and George Swingwood are members of the general committee, which is headed by Frank A. McGowan, Canton. George T. Blake, Columbus, former resident of this city, is chairman of the Columbus committee.

The meeting will open at 3 p. m. when assembly will take place at the McKinley monument in front of the state house. The afternoon service will be held in the senate chamber of the state house. Arthur C. Johnson, Sr., former member of Company B, Columbus, will be the officer of the day.

"McKinley's Own."

The Eighth Ohio Volunteer Infantry was known as "The President's Own" in the war with Spain. Three companies in the regiment were recruited in Canton, the home of the late President William McKinley.

The Eighth Ohio Volunteer Infantry was commanded by the late Colonel Curtis V. Hard, of Wooster. The regiment was organized at Akron, April 26, 1898. It participated in the expedition which resulted in the capture of Santiago de Cuba and was a part of the Fifth Army corps which composed the troops selected for that campaign.

Company A was recruited in Bucyrus; Company B, Akron; Company C, Polk county; Company D, Wooster; Company E, East Liverpool; Company F, Canton; Company G, Wadsworth; Company H, Shreve; Company I, Canton; Company K, Alliance; Company L, Canton; Company M, Mansfield; Band, Akron; hospital corps, from various company stations. The regiment was taken to Cuba on the steamer St. Paul, which was commanded by Captain George Sigbee, former commander of the ill-fated Maine.

The regiment was mustered out of service at Wooster, November 21, 1898, after serving little less than seven months.

After the regiment was mustered out, the colors were placed in the state house and for many years they were believed to have been lost. Several months ago a search was made for them and finally they were located in a dark dingy corner of the state capitol.

HEAR REPLEVIN CASE FRIDAY

Service Director to Probe Sale of City Property.

A replevin action filed before Mayor W. L. Fogo by Service Director J. J. Grafton, for the recovery of property once owned by the city, and which, it is claimed, was sold during the former administration, will be thrashed out on Friday night in police court.

According to papers filed by Director Grafton, Thomas Jackson, former garbage collector, bought a tank and a part of a road scraper from the former administration.

Jackson, it is claimed, asserts he paid for the property. Director Grafton questions whether municipally owned property can be disposed of in the way in which it was.

The tank, according to city officials, was purchased several years ago from a local boiler manufacturing company and was used but little.

Jackson was dismissed the first of the year by Mayor Fogo and Ed Grimes named in his stead.

KIRBY TESTIMONY WILL END TODAY

Taking of testimony in the trial of Josiah Kirby, charged with using the mails to defraud, will reach its end in federal district court here today. There only remains now the argument of attorney's for the government and defense and the charge of Judge John M. Killitts, presiding, before the jury will be called upon to decide whether or not the various actions of the former head of the Cleveland Discount company, in promoting the corporation and selling its securities ran counter to the laws of the United States.

Kirby submitted yesterday to grueling cross-examination by government attorneys, in which Judge Killitts joined. For the first time since he took the stand he seemed for a moment to lose his composure and when he retorted hotly to a question by District Attorney A. E. Bernstein he was reproved by the court, and told that he must answer the questions yes or no.

A trunk full of missing personal records of Kirby, found in Philadelphia, were wheeled into the court room late yesterday. His counsel was to decide this morning whether these would be introduced in evidence. They said a hasty examination had shown them to be salesmen's records of little value in the present hearing.

Four hours will be allowed each side for argument in the case Judge Killitts' charge to the jury will probably take up the rest of Thursday and the jury is likely to have the case Thursday night.

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, at bed time.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

One of The Oldest Businesses

The business of banking had its humble beginnings in empires long forgotten, and has kept pace with civilization through all the ages.

Many centuries before the time of Christ, money changers were active in Assyria. Later on, Athens, Carthage and Rome had their banker-merchants. And about the year 1400, the Venetian bank began to accept deposits and issue notes, thus introducing banking in its modern sense. Today, with ages of development back of them, banks are indispensable helpmates of all business.

Though the Potters National claims no particular distinction for age, we have, for 44 years, played an important part in successfully aiding the commercial and industrial growth of East Liverpool. And with the added facilities and conveniences of our new home, YOU will find Potters National Service even more valuable in helping you to develop your financial interests to the fullest.

We respectfully solicit your business.

REPORT IS FILED ON STATE CROPS

A final analysis of West Virginia's agricultural production shows its fifteen leading crops in 1925 to have an estimate of $60,118,000, as compared to $59,770,600 in 1924, or an increase of $348,000. This was due to an increase in area planted as well as higher prices for some commodities. The area planted in 1925, not including orchards, was 1,731,000 acres, which was 81,000 acres more than planted to the same crops in 1924.

The change of acreage is of still further importance, as it shows there had been a decrease in the hay acreage and a large increase in grains and other more valuable crops. Pasture and plow lands that have been idle were plowed, and that together with the breaking of meadows show a decided increase in cultivated crops. The final estimates are based on returns from farmers of the state to John W. Smith, West Virginia's commissioner of agriculture, and Bernard Gibbs, of the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics, together with information obtained from the U. S. bureau of census.

STATE PLANS TO SELL ROAD BONDS

West Virginia will sell another $3,000,000 block of state road bonds on February 2, it was announced today. The new issue, for which bids are sought at this time because of favorable bond market conditions, are a part of the $20,000,000 authorized by the 1925 legislature and after their sale will leave $3,750,000 still to be sold.

The rate of interest will be fixed by the bidder, in multiples of one quarter, subject to the limitations that the interest shall not be more than 4½ per cent, and the bonds will be sold to the bidder offering the lowest interest rate and the highest price at the rate. Under the constitution bonds cannot be sold for less than par and accrued interest.

Bonds of this issue will mature from January 1, 1935 to January 1, 1938 in equal amounts of $750,000 each year.

"Sporting Venus" Photoplay Feature Booked at Strand

That irrepressible director, Marshall Neilan, turns back from the tragedy of "Tess" to the field of comedy, in his latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "The Sporting Venus," which is coming to the Strand theatre tomorrow. Also turning back from the somberness of a D'Urville is Blanche Sweet, who has in "The Sporting Venus," her first light role in a long, long time. Miss Sweet, bobbed and saucy, reveals a heretofore unknown phase of her personality, because it is the first story in which she has appeared where the heroine has been of the flapper type.

Featured in the cast are Ronald Colman and Lew Cody. Mr. Colman has achieved considerable popularity lately in such pictures as "The White Sister," "Romola" and "Tarnish," in "The Sporting Venus" he has the role of a Scotch hero, which makes everything just right, since Colman is a Scotchman himself. Mr. Cody, whose villainous, but pleasant, manners on the screen have graced many a picture, is less villainous and even more pleasant than usual in "The Sporting Venus." He appears as a defunct prince, whose creditors are forcing him slowly but surely into marriage.

Y. M. C. A. Bathing Pool Open; Plan Water Activities

The bathing pool at the Y. M. C. A. is again available to the membership after having been closed since October because of a breakdown in the water heating system.

Harvey Price, boys' work director, has planned special water activities for members of the intermediate, elementary and junior groups this week. The program will include races, novelties and aquatic stunts of various kinds.

Fighting Huge Waves

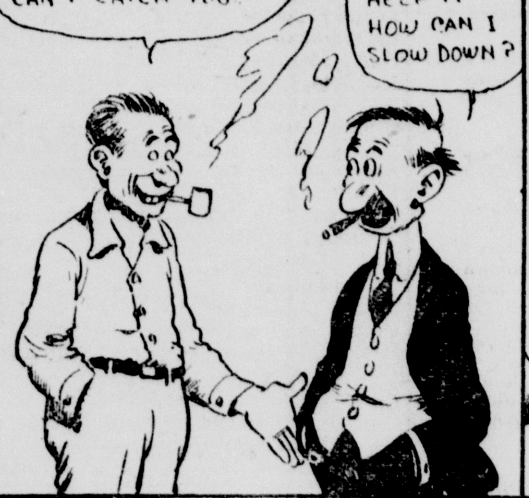

How often we read of the battles and hardships of the intrepid mariner, running into and through storms, fighting the huge waves never swerving from the duties aboard ship which he knows are necessary to the safety of the hundreds of passengers aboard, and one of the first to brave any condition demanded of him in his line of duty. The same is true of thousands of people who were never on a boat, perhaps never viewed a body of water larger than a river or creek, but who are bravely battling daily for their own lives, just because there is some disarrangement of the stomach, indigestion, constipation, kidney and liver trouble, rheumatism, headaches, sleeplessness, etc. Their very existence is made miserable, and may give up despairingly of ever securing relief. But there is hope for this class of sufferers in Kad-lok, the wonderful herbal stomach trouble and system builder, which has now been on the market for years, and which has restored thousands of citizens of this and other states back to normal health. Hardly a day passes but what grateful people write to the Kad-lok laboratories at Columbus, O., telling of their almost miraculous recovery to health.

Mr. John C. Rose, 14023 Crescent road, Charleston, W. Va., says: "I was run down, with indigestion, constipation, nervousness, loss of sleep, rheumatic pains all over the body. After taking Kad-lok I am a well man, feel fine. Kad-lok was just what I needed."

Kad-lok is sold in East Liverpool at Matthews Cut Rate Store and other drug stores.

YOUR HEALTH

Life for a Thousand Years Is Called a Possibility

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

JUST the other day I read an amusing statement. The Supreme Commander of a fraternal insurance order made some striking remarks about old age. You will be interested in them: "The average age at death, in the 7th century was twenty-one years. In 1824 it was thirty-five years. During the last century it has been raised to forty-five years. Carried on at the same rate of gain, the average age would be eighty-three years by the end of the next century. By the year 2624, it would reach the span of 1,015 years!"

The same speaker said other interesting things. "The thousand year old man, scientists say, is a biological possibility. Time is not the destroyer. Changes in the human body, considered marks of senility, may begin at an early age."

As suggested, not all the causes of short life are to be found in the way we live. Some of them are born with us. If we knew everything about the "endless glands" and other mysteries of the human body, the secret of long life might be revealed at once.

It may be a long time before this secret is stumbled upon, but in the meantime we can follow a few simple rules which will help to achieve for ourselves what the aforementioned speaker hopes may be realized for everybody by the end of the next century.

Your chance of long life is much reduced if you have diseased and broken teeth. Dental decay, abscessed roots and infected gums are among the causes of those conditions which materially shorten life.

Kidneys which have become diseased through years of wrong eating and wrong drinking may refuse to perform their normal function of taking waste from the body.

Neglect of the things which prevent constipation may result in irritation of the bowels with waste material. Absorption of the poisons, which germinate in consequence, are fatal to the hope of long life.

You cannot eat as you should if your teeth are sore and broken. Good teeth are but little better than bad ones if you use them to chew unwholesome food or too much of good foods.

Give thought to your manner of life and so direct your ways that years may be added to your expectation.

Deceased was born near Calcutta in this county and moved to this section about 60 years ago. He was the oldest member of the Alliance lodge of Odd Fellows. In addition to Mrs. Knoll he is survived by two sons and two daughters, John, Warren, Homeworth; Iva, Springfield, and Ethel, Los Angeles, Cal. Funeral services were held Sunday in the Knoll home. Rev. S. W. Seeman, pastor of the Homeworth Presbyterian church, was in charge. Burial was made in Mount Union cemetery.

In Hard Lines

"I could not work at all and had to take to my bed with a high fever due to intestinal indigestion, gases in my stomach and pain in my right side. I had spent my last cent for doctors and medicine, which gave me no relief. I was in despair. A lodge brother gave me a bottle of MAYR'S ('One Dose Will Convince') and the first dose relieved me. Thanks to this medicine I am now in the best of health." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

HELEN TO SHOW NEWEST MODES

May Provide New Tennis Styles for Riviera Sightseers.

By Frederick K. Abbott.

CANNES, Jan. 27.—Having been satisfied by the brand of tennis Miss Helen Wills has supplied, the Riviera sightseers are now anxious to know what she plans to do in the way of furnishing new tennis styles.

Miss Wills' eye-shade is already popular here, but now it is whispered that she has been in consultation with some French modistes and intends to display some rather unusual new models in tennis garb. Up until now the California girl has been content to appear on the courts in very sensible white and gray, occasionally donning a brilliant cerise or blue sweater.

Inasmuch as Suzanne Lenglen has long been the accepted leader of France in tennis fashion, there is much conjecture as to just what Miss Wills may have to offer in the way of modes.

Suzanne may change her mind and seek an earlier meeting with Miss Wills, it was reported today. Although Miss Lenglen has been announced as scratching in next week's singles at Nice it was stated today that she might re-consider. It is understood here that the American girl can not maintain her form as frequent match play as she is now indulging in and if she falls off in her form during the week the French girl may take advantage of this and enter in the singles at Nice next week. Otherwise it is not likely that the two rivals will meet before the middle of February, if then.

There are some who say that Suzanne would just as soon let interest in the possibilities of a Wills-Lenglen match simmer until Wimbledon in June.

Miss Wills is quietly proceeding in her own way and apparently is not worrying a bit about whether she meets Suzanne early or late. In fact she feels that the longer the meeting is delayed the better her chances will be, for every day finds her better acclimated and more accustomed to the French tennis conditions.

Dempsey's Restaurant Makes Money; Old Prize Fighters Wash Dishes

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—Jack Dempsey has opened a new cafe in Los Angeles and it's proving a money-maker.

The heavyweight boxing champion's latest business venture is located next to his hotel, but the guests of his hostelry are only a small part of the crowd visiting the cafe.

The cuisine at Dempsey's place is not bad, but the crowd comes to see the champion, rather than eat.

Every evening during dinner, Dempsey walks through the cafe several times. Usually he eats dinner there. Often his wife, Estelle Taylor, the actress, dines with him.

Around the cafe, which is on a corner, low windows face the streets and here is a favorite spot for small boys of Los Angeles. Almost any hour during the early evening, one may glance from Dempsey's tables to the windows to see youngsters pointing soiled fingers at the heavyweight.

Dempsey is rather proud of his success as a hotel man.

He rather resents having the public think he can make money only with his brawn.

"After all, I'm just a prizefighter," is a favorite remark of the champion. But he doesn't mean what he says.

He would much more prefer success in the business world than in the ring, according to his friends.

He likes to make money outside of the roped arena as a sop to his vanity.

The champion never took his screen appearances seriously. He went through several productions much after the fashion of a boy playing in high school theatricals. It was rather a lark, with little difference as to the outcome.

Yet after the pictures were finished, Dempsey watched the box receipts carefully. Any money made by his screen productions brought him pleasure, because he was hopeful perhaps he could become a money-maker without employment of his hard fists.

Any attention Dempsey gives to the movies in the future will be from the theatre-owner or producer's side.

Greatest Race Event.

According to the report issued by J. I. Markey, secretary of the Hambletonian society, Stake No. 1 which will feature the Syracuse, N. Y. Grand Circuit meeting, August 30 to September 4, will total nearly $70,000. If such be the case this will be the largest amount in one race, the harness horses ever have raced for in this country. The largest amount to date was the $50,000 American Derby at Readville in 1903.

German Will Finish Fourth, Says 'Murch'

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—What may be the prelude of another international controversy was set in motion today when Loren Murchison, America's greatest indoor sprinter, gazed down the nostril at Hubert Houben, German champion, and spoke in rather deprecating accents of the Teuton's ability. He picked Houben to finish no better than fourth when he steps out against the field of American sprinters at the Millrose games on February 4.

The statement was made to friends here and was offered merely as a personal opinion by one who had seen the German run. Unfortunately, the view was from the rear. Houben beat both Murchison and Charley Paddock abroad.

Loren didn't say who were the three Americans that figured to head Houben at the tape here. One of them undoubtedly is named Murchison and not without reason. At the distances of the Millrose sprint series, 40, 50 and 60 yards indoors, "Murch" virtually is unbeatable. De Har Hubbard and Francis Hussey probably are the others he has in mind as the superiors of Houben.

Just why the latter can be such a riot abroad and figure only as an also ran here Murchison is understood to have declined to say.

However, some of the Boys have begun to whisper behind the German's record and many of his victories have been made possible by what is technically known as "heating the gun." There is nothing fundamentally dishonest about this practice; all sprinters have tried it at one time or another. It is simply disconcerted here because the boys know they can't get away with it against competent officials and we have few, if any, that are not.

Houben is known as a remarkably fast man out of his holes and foreign competition is equally famous for the fact that they don't set man back for "breaking" off the mark. This, of course, places a premium on a sprinter's ability to get under way before the gun.

In the Olympic games of some years ago, this system resulted in an endless series of false starts, no sprinter feeling himself justified in letting a rival get away as long as there wasn't a penalty involved. In the last games at Paris, they had a rule that disqualified any man who "broke" more than three times but it was not generally observed by starting officials. There was no provision about setting a man back a yard for each "break," however, and false starting was pretty general.

Jack Donaldson, the old professional sprinter from Australia, and Jake Weher, Fordham trainer, have had charge of the German's workouts since his arrival. They report that he has been quite steady on the mark but, then, Houben has been running alone. There is no particular nourishment in a man trying to beat himself away from the starting line.

BAPTISTS LOSE TO U. P. PASSERS IN CLOSE SCRAP

Park Boulevards Win From Chester Quint, 32-20.

The United Presbyterians nosed out the Baptists, 24 to 24, on the M. P. court, and the Park Boulevards, trimmed the Chester Presbyterians, 32-20, while the Lutheran Juniors were winning from the Christian Juniors, 60-17, on the Odd Fellows court in Sunday school league engagements last night.

The U. P.-Baptist clash was rough and fast, with the Baptists spurring to within three points of tying up the count in the final quarter after trailing, 16 to 11, at the half.

F. Kirkham and Cox duelled to a deadlock in the matter of making field goals in the Park Presbyterian battle, each getting six. Five two-pointers by Barnes, Park forward, decided the issue.

The Lutheran Juniors enjoyed a runaway with the Christian Juniors. Brown, of the Lutherans, rang up 17 field goals.

The lineups: U. P. 27. Dickey, F. Mackey, McGraw, C. Parsons, Hoffman, G. D. Fugate, Curry, G. Kittridge, Substitution—Stewart for Fugate. Field goals—Dickey 3, Roberts, Hoffman 5, Hall 3, Mackey 5, Parsons.

Park goals—Dickey 6, Roberts 3, Hall 4, Mackey, Parsons. Referee—Lorah.

Park Blvd. 32 Chester Presby 20 Barnes, F. Cox, F. Smith, F. Miller, F. Kirkham, C. Ferguson, Gallimore, G. Haney, O. Kirkham, G. Rodacker, Substitution—Azdell for Smith. Field goals—Barnes 5, Azdell, F. Kirkham 6, Cox 6, Ferguson, Haney. Foul goals—Barnes 2, Azdell, F. Kirkham, O. Kirkham 4, Cox 2, Miller, Haney. Referee—Reid.

M'GRAW LIKES HIS PITCHERS

Optimistic Over Outlook For 1926 Ball Curvers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Being a professional optimist at heart, John McGraw recently opened his mouth and allowed as to how the 1927 Giants will have their best pitching staffs since the mellow, old championship days of 1905.

He made the observation while rubbing mental hands of great glee over the transaction that resulted in Jimmy Ring coming to the Polo grounds, and the writer is inclined to believe that John spoke first and thought afterward, or else was merely talking to hear his teeth rattle.

Ring will top off a pitching staff embracing Kent Greenfield, Fred Fitzsimmons, Virgil Barnes, Art Neff, Hugh McQuillan and a few casual others. If Greenfield and Fitzsimmons pay dividends on their 1925 promise, it will be better than any pitching staff McGraw has had since the war.

If they do not, it will be worse. Neff is almost through and McQuillan is as unreliable as an elderly pair of suspenders. McGraw may be placing too much faith in Greenfield and Fitzsimmons. We have had one-year pitchers before.

However, granting that they all come through, there is little doubt that the 1926 staff will click with reasonable adequacy. But rate the collection above anything that operated since 1905? It isn't being done.

The write, for example, wouldn't like to trade the 1926 staff for Matty, Marquard, Tesreau and Crandall, who brought pennants here in 1912 and 1913. Nor would he see any reason to make the exchange for Matty, Marquard, Crandall, Wiltse and Ames, of the pennant-winning team of 1911.

As a matter of fact, it is not altogether certain that the 1926 staff figures to be as good as that of 1917, featuring Sallee, Benton and Schupp, left-handers all, and at the top of their stride at that, plus Tesreau and Peritt, right-handers.

"Skipper Bill" McKechnie Won't Be Averse to Series With Phils

Pirate Leader Talks Shop at Banquet Tendered by Toronto Fans Last Night; Discusses World's Series Plays and Players; Secretary Sam Watters and Coach Jack Onslow Accompany Buc Pilot.

S KIPPER "Bill" McKechnie, leader of the champion Pittsburgh Pirates, may lead his Buccaneers against the Phillies in the 1926 world series of the prayers of Smoky City baseball fans and the fortunes of baseball as they are cut out for the coming campaign are in accord. Fandom in the Keystone state, tasting victory in a world series last year, has started to whet its appetite at this early stage for an all-Pennsylvania world series this season and McKechnie would not be at all averse to the proceeding.

McKechnie, Coach Jack Onslow and Secretary Sam Watters of the Pittsburgh club were guests at a banquet given last night in the Methodist Protestant church in Toronto. Approximately 150 baseball enthusiasts from the East Liverpool, Toronto, and Steubenville districts attended the event.

McKechnie discussed pennant chances for the coming campaign—he thinks they're great! He discussed players and plays of the recent world's series. He thinks he's got a great aggregation of ball hands, and believes nothing will stop them this year, not even McGraw.

Brief talks were given by Onslow and Watters. A. C. Lewis and Roy McLean, of Steubenville, Guy Johnson and "Doc" Kilgus, of Toronto. A musical program rounded out the evening's festivities.

Although there is not a man on the Pittsburgh club who minimizes the possibilities of an entry piloted by John McGraw, dean of all pennant winners, the players themselves are confident of another league pennant in 1926. The belief expressed is that, with the New York Giants out of the way, the Buccaneers will have little difficulty in outdistancing the other six clubs, Cincinnati Reds included.

They cite facts to substantiate the opinion. Pointing out that the winter thus far has failed to produce any trades of real consequence, the Pittsburgh players and their followers hope the Pirates' already notorious hitting faculties will be even more evident this season through the addition of

BOWLING

T. S. T. bowlers are champions of the Industrial duckpin league for the season nearing a close.

The issue was decided last night at the Liberty alleys when Laughlin No. 1, their nearest rivals, dropped one of three games to Heimies and also dropped their chance to tie it up with the league leaders. The Laughlins shot a total of 2,022 in their match against the Heimies, but most of the marksmanship came in the second and third games, after the premier had been lost. The Heimie five hung up a 715 in the first frame and Laughlin's 609 couldn't compete.

T. S. T. finishes first—Laughlin 1 second, Smith News third, and Heimies fourth.

And the Heimies can boast a little, too. They took over the standing of the American Express outfit early in the season, which at that time was right at the bottom, and worked their way up to a 500 berth.

Wilkinson wins high single game honors, with 218. Manypenny knocks down the laurels for three games, with 523. Laughlin 1 wins team honors for one game, with 809 and also for three games with 2,131.

Canne owns the highest average. He scattered the timber for a season's mark of 140.

The Elks and Flemings will battle tonight on the Liberty runways.

It is an annual event and one of the outstanding clashes of the season here.

The Elks will probably lineup with Patterson, McMillen, Alex. Wells and Heimie. Flemings' five will probably see Canne, Greene, Fleming, Adams and Smith in action.

Last Night's Score:

Heimies—
Wurzell	184	122	144	430
Bennett	139	134	145	418

ability over a stretch of several seasons while the same cannot be said at this time of Fitzsimmons and Greenfield. Indeed, the former joined the club late in 1925 and didn't pitch more than a half dozen games.

He was good then, but the writer would prefer to see more of him and say less, pending developments.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Stanley ("Bucky") Harris, the youthful manager of the Senators, who has piloted his team to two successive American league pennants, has signed a three-year contract, according to word telegraphed to Washington today by Clark Griffith, the club owner. Griffith and Harris are in Tampa, Fla.

While the details were not made public, it is understood Harris' new contract calls for $100,000 for the three-year period. Last year he is said to have received $25,000.

Q. How should oil be applied to a baseball bat? H. N.

A. A small amount of natural oil should be applied to a baseball bat and rubbed in with a bone. After it is thoroughly rubbed in, the bat should be put away in a cool dry place. If it is boned once a week from now until spring the bat should be in good condition.

Q. Where are there memorials to Abraham Lincoln? J. A. W.

A. There are innumerable memorials erected to Abraham Lincoln throughout the United States and also in other parts of the world. The most noteworthy include those at Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Illinois University, Lincoln Hall; Springfield, Illinois; Muskegon, Michigan; Newark, New Jersey, and Washington, D. C. Statues at the National Capitol, the City Hall, Lincoln Park and Lincoln Memorial, also at London and Edinburgh.

Q. Can nuts be called fruits? C. T.

A. In botany the fruit of a flowering plant is the matured seed vessel and its contents together with such accessory parts as become finally incorporated with them. Thus in a botanical sense not only apples, grapes, etc., but all berries, nuts, grains, beans, pumpkins, cucumbers, etc., are fruits. Popular usage has become much narrower. The grains have been dropped and the tendency is to drop nuts also, so that a fruit is now generally understood to be the fleshy, juicy product of some plant which when ripe is edible without cooking and adapted to use as a dessert.

Q. Where was the first modern hippodrome built and how large was it? G. E.

A. The first indoor circus of modern times was built at Paris in 1843. It was built entirely of wood, the arena was 108 metres long and 104 wide and it had a seating capacity of 15,000 persons. This was destroyed by fire in 1870.

Q. What is the national forest 10 per cent fund? I. H.

A. The act of August 10, 1912, gave 10 per cent of the national forest receipts to the Forest Service for the construction of roads and trails within the forests. This amounted to $497,131.57 for the fiscal year 1925. To the present time the 10 per cent fund has amounted to $5,088,330.54.

Q. Did any of England's pipe organs survive the time of Cromwell? R. H. W.

A. In England there are no remains of organs constructed during the mediaeval period. Andley says: "Owing to the general destruction of organs in time of Cromwell, we have no conception of the richness of the church organs during the 15th and 16th centuries. The more beautiful and richly decorated organs, the more completely they were destroyed, and their pipes melted down for bullets."

Q. What was the last composition played by Haydn? F. E.

A. Five days before his death, Haydn was carried to his piano. He played his own hymn to the emperor. This was the last time he touched his instrument.

The new directory puts Greater Detroit's population at 1,551,437, an increase of 162,587 in one year. The city of automobiles and flying machines grows rapidly, and so does this entire fortunate nation.

Our population increases more than 2 per cent, or about 2,000,000 a year. Business and prosperity increases twice as rapidly as population. We should be grateful.

Mexico's biggest volcano, Popocatepetl, in violent eruption, terrifies the people, and many believe, as in ancient days, that some demon or god is annoyed.

Luckily for the very common people, those that rule understand the volcano. In old days, before Columbus, native priests would have sought to pacify the god. Human victims would have had their breasts cut open with a knife or sharp stone, and their hearts held up, bleeding, toward the angry god to pacify him.

We don't yet understand all about volcanoes, but at least we know that no god or devil uses them to show his anger.

A joint legislative committee planning to modify the Volstead act at this session will probably not succeed. Prohibition will stay in the constitution until those now in the cradle are old. A determined prohibition minority would not allow a change in the Volstead law, even assuming that a majority really wants to change it.

D. L. Sharp offers, apart from virtue and morality, the best argument in favor of Volstead. He says men were not ready for prohibition, but the times and modern machinery were ready, and made prohibition necessary.

"High among the white-piled clouds above the house and the tree tops rears an airplane from Boston for New York. That pilot isn't drunk. No matter what the bibulous habits of his father might have been, the child of the sky, driving like Icarus, but unscorched by the sun, needs no tingling drop of alcohol to fire his courage or to steady his nerves."

That's brilliant writing, in spite of the fact, proved in the World war, that flyers between flights were often hard drinkers.

"Machinery must be dry, so must be the people who run it, those who repair it and those who build it," is Mr. Sharp's conclusion.

Milwaukee supplies an account of miraculous exorcism, believed by many, deeply religious, to have been the actual driving out of a devil from a child.

How to Prepare 1,095 Meals Each Year

Did you ever stop to think that the housekeeper who does her own cooking prepares 1,095 meals a year? And more than that, after these meals she washes 1,095 sets of dishes.

With such a task before her how important it is that the housewife have the benefit of every labor-saving device possible.

A kitchen cabinet will save thousands of steps; a fireless cooker permits the housekeeper to leave her food cooking without worrying about the results; a dish drainer not only saves time and labor but does away with the too often insanitary dish towel; serving trays lessons the trips between the dining room and kitchen both in serving and clearing away meals.

These household conveniences may be made at a moderate cost by anybody who has a few simple tools and the ability to use them. Directions are given in a government booklet which this bureau has for free distribution. Enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.

MOTHER, THREE TOTS TRAPPED; MAN DIES OF HEART FAILURE

Flames Force 200 Tenants to Flee to Streets.

THREE INJURED

Husband Drops Dead Attempting to Rescue Invalid.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Five persons, including a mother and three of her children, lost their lives in two tenement fires here today. Mrs. Anna Falta, 34, and the three youngest members of her family, Thomas, 7; Helen, 3; and Anna, 18 months, were trapped in their room when fire swept the third floor of the house at 124 East 100th street.

George Kissner, who recently was injured in a hold-up, died from heart failure while attempting to rescue his invalid wife in a blaze at 2364 Eighth avenue.

Although neither fire did great material damage, more than 200 tenants of both houses were roused from sleep and hustled down fire escapes to the cold streets in hastily donned clothing. Both fires occurred within a short time of each other.

Mrs. Falta's husband, William, and two other sons, William and Joseph, were injured in their frantic efforts to save the woman and her babies. The fire, however, swept into an airshaft next to Mrs. Falta's room, making it impossible of entrance.

POOLROOM MAN IS FINED $50

Walter McDonald, operator of the Diamond pool room, was fined $50 and costs by Municipal Judge Hanley late yesterday afternoon upon a charge of permitting gambling.

McDonald was arrested after Patrolman Herman Roth is alleged to have interrupted a game of pool in the establishment Monday evening.

T. H. Wilkinson, former councilman, was to appear before Judge Hanley this afternoon to answer a charge of driving through a funeral procession. He was arrested by Captain of Police Conley.

David Williamson, Erie street, will also be arraigned today upon a charge of violating the traffic ordinance by driving through a red block at the corner of Fifth street and Broadway. The arrest was made by Chief McDermott.

100,000 Mourners Pass Malines Bier Of Belgian Prelate

The officials of St. Gudule have received 18,000 requests for admissions to the national funeral tomorrow, but seats are only available for 5,000.

Ohio Woman's Body Found In Cistern; Husband Arrested

Newcomerstown Police Investigate Death of Mrs. Harvey Haver as Federal Authorities File Charges Against Mail Carrier.

DOVER, O., Jan. 27.—A cistern murder, of which Mrs. Catherine Haver, 45, was the victim, was revealed at Newcomerstown, following the arrest by federal authorities, of her husband, Harvey Haver, newcomerstown mail carrier, on a charge of tampering with the mails.

Following Haver's arrest, Sheriff George Stucky and deputies went to the farm of Haver's father, two and one-half miles from Newcomerstown, and found the body of the missing woman in an abandoned cistern on the farm. The body was brought to the surface with grappling hooks.

Haver told a story of an amazing suicide pact, in which, he declared, his wife had often told him that she planned to commit suicide and wished her last resting place to be the abandoned cistern.

Police expect confession. Haver is still being held in Newcomerstown pending the coroner's inquest, it was learned this afternoon. It had at first been reported that Haver would be taken to Columbus to be arraigned on a formal federal charge of tampering with the mails.

Police authorities expected to draw a confession of murder from Haver before night. They said the man, since his arrest, has changed his story of the finding of his wife's body in the cistern and he is momentarily expected to admit that he murdered Mrs. Haver.

He now says that on December 1 he came home and found the body of his wife hanging from the rafters in the basement of their home. He said that he buried her in the cistern in the back of the house, conforming to the wishes of Mrs. Haver who had often remarked that she wanted the cistern to be her final resting place.

The body of the woman, clad in a soiled nightgown, was dragged from beneath a large barrel in the cistern. Deterioration had set to work and the body was in bad condition due to three weeks in the damp of the cistern. It may be somewhat difficult to learn by an examination of the body, how the woman met her death.

Woman Missing Since Dec. 1. Mrs. Haver disappeared from her home December 1. Haver told friends she had deserted him, and on January 18 followed this with filing of a suit for divorce, alleging that his wife had attacked him with a poker, burned valuable clothing and constantly nagged him.

The federal investigation began when relatives of the woman residing in Pennsylvania were unable to obtain word from her. Letters to her remained unanswered, but Haver, post office inspectors said, wrote them to do not "know where in hell she had gone."

MRS. MARY KELLER "NOT GUILTY" OF MURDER; SENT TO STATE ASYLUM

Jury at Sandusky Finds Woman, Charged With Killing Little Daughter, is Insane.

SANDUSKY, O., Jan. 27.—A verdict of "not guilty because of insanity," was returned just before noon today by the jury in the case of Mrs. Mary Keller, charged with the murder of her daughter, Fay Elizabeth, 7. The verdict carries with it imprisonment in the state hospital for the insane, at Lima, O.

The jury deliberated all morning. They got the case late yesterday, after Judge Fissinger completed his charge.

The body of the little girl was found in a cabin near East Sandusky last November. The mother was arrested shortly afterwards. In police court she confessed her guilt, declaring she killed the girl because she did not want her to face the kind of life she had to face—poor, without love and with constant family bickering.

KIWANIANS ENTERTAIN LADIES WITH DINNER, MUSIC AND DANCE

Dolly Madison Was Flapper in Modern Sense, Woman Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Dolly Madison was a "flapper" in the modern sense, according to Mrs. Harry Atwood Colman.

"Had Dolly Madison lived today," said Mrs. Colman, addressing the Susan B. Anthony Foundation, "she undoubtedly would have been called a flapper. She was frivolous, dipped snuff, used rouge, and played cards for high stakes."

On the other hand, Mrs. Colman said, Martha Washington was quiet and demure.

One Hundred Guests Bow Heads in Tribute to Late Rev. L. C. Difford Prior to Program.

A roast turkey dinner, served by Caterer Daly Larikins and his aides, a program of dancing, readings, music, including instrumental and vocal selections, solo and group numbers, humor and typical conviviality combined to form a successful entertainment for Kiwanians, their wives and friends at last night's ladies' night meeting in the Larikins restaurant annex, Market street.

Approximately 100 persons occupied places about the four long banquet tables, with President and Mrs. C. C. Cline and Secretary and Mrs. C. E. Gruber seated at the head table from whence President Cline directed the program.

A departure from the festive spirit of the occasion occurred immediately before the guests were seated when President Cline asked that the memory of the late Rev. Lionel C. Difford, rector of the St. Stephen's Episcopal church, be honored by a moment of silence, which guests did, with heads bowed.

As the assembly was seated, Prof. (Continued on Page Six)

$4,000 QUOTA IN BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN IN SIGHT AT NOON

Workers Estimate $3,000 is Pledged During Forenoon.

SPEED UP DRIVE

Final Reports Will be Made at Dinner Tonight.

Approximately $3,000 of the $4,000 quota assigned the East Liverpool-Chester-Newton district in the $10,000 Columbiana County Boy Scout fund for 1926, had been subscribed at noon today, and indications were that the goal would be reached before evening.

Approximately 75 merchants, professional men and manufacturers are taking part in the campaign which was launched when the workers met for dinner at the Y. M. C. A. last night. Prospective contributors who are being interviewed in the solicitation for funds number about 2,100.

Early reports reaching the county Boy Scout headquarters in the election board office in the Betz building, this morning, were that but few refusals were met by the campaigners.

T. E. Lewis Campaign Chief. A majority of the contributions were reported to be in cash, but some of the larger gifts were in pledges, due in most cases not later than June 1.

The workers have been divided into two sides—one in charge of Dr. Roy R. Bode and the other headed by Attorney Walter Stevenson. Dr. Bode has 10 teams under his direction, while Mr. Stevenson's division is made up of nine teams.

Campaign Chairman T. E. Lewis presided at the dinner last evening. He explained the plan of the campaign briefly. Harry Wilson, county scout executive, submitted the county budget.

"We should have at least 600 Boy Scouts in East Liverpool," said Mr. Lewis. "A survey of the schools and churches in this district shows that at least 500 boys have signified their eagerness to be come affiliated with Boy Scout troops. If only half of that number take the scout pledge we will have been doubly repaid for efforts in this work."

Mrs. David Southall Is Beneficiary of War Risk Insurance

Mrs. David Southall, Lincoln highway, has been advised that she is the beneficiary of a war risk insurance policy taken out by her brother, Oliver Kent, former resident of West Virginia, who died in an army training camp during the World war.

Mrs. Southall was located here by officers of East Liverpool post No. 4, American Legion. Ray T. Adam, commander of the post, received a letter from Dr. M. D. Ryan, of Hinton, W. Va., a few days ago, asking him to find Mrs. Emma Southall, who was last heard of from East Liverpool. The physician stated that Oliver Kent, brother of Mrs. Southall, who died in the service, had named her as the beneficiary of his insurance, and that government officials were anxious to communicate with her.

The sister was not aware that she had been named the beneficiary in the policy. Mrs. Adam has notified Dr. Ryan of Mrs. Southall's address and the insurance payment probably will be made within the next few weeks.

Washington Expects Secretary of War Davis and President Coolidge Will Promptly Comply With Wishes of Airman to Quit Service Following Court-Martial Sentence.

LETTER DISPATCHED TO ADJUTANT GENERAL CONTAINS ONE SENTENCE

Restoration of Half of Pay and All Allowances for Subsistence Fails to Affect Decision of Officer Who Was Stripped of Rank and Command After 25 Years' Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Col. Billy Mitchell climaxed his 28 years' service in the army today by resigning.

Refusing to accept the five years' suspension imposed by a court-martial that convicted him of violating army rules in his criticisms of his superiors, the stormy petrel of the air service took the only avenue of escape and decided to quit.

He will step out on Feb. 1, freed of the "gag" imposed upon him by his jury of generals, and free to continue his fight for a greater air service.

His resignation followed President Coolidge's approval of the court-martial sentence.

It is expected that the resignation will be promptly accepted by Secretary of War Davis and President Coolidge. The resignation was submitted in a single cryptic sentence: "I hereby tender my resignation as an officer in the United States army to take effect February 1, 1926. Signed, William Mitchell."

It was dispatched to the adjutant general of the army to the commanding officer of the district.

Will Press Air Service Fight. In approving the court-martial sentence, President Coolidge restored half of Mitchell's pay and all of his allowances for subsistence. Under this ruling, Mitchell, though stripped of rank and command, would be subject to war department discipline.

Restoration of his pay was at the pleasure of the president. Under these restrictions, Mitchell felt that he would be hindered in pressing his fight for a preeminent air service, and decided therefore that he best could work for aviation outside the army.

Withholds Comment. Until the resignation is accepted by the secretary of war and the president, Mitchell did not feel "free" to make any statement. His technical position is still that of an officer undergoing punishment.

Secretary of War Davis has already stated he would approve Mitchell's resignation, and President Coolidge's acquiescence is believed merely a matter of form.

The resignation will be accepted "for the good of the service," that being the time-honored phrase used in resignations of officers from the military establishment.

Expect Hot Statement. Once this resignation is actually accepted, and Col. Mitchell is, as his friends term it, "a free man," is expected to make a hot statement.

$24,000 INCOME SHRINKAGE AND $8,000 IN UNPAID BILLS FROM 1925 FACE BENEDUM ADMINISTRATION

The Benedum administration faces a reduction in revenue of approximately $24,000 this year, with an additional burden of $8,000 in unpaid bills from 1925 hanging over their heads, according to a statement issued today by Service-Safety Director John W. Moore.

The levy for the present year after state, county schools, sinking fund and other requirements have been deducted, amounts to 2.83 mills as compared to 2.30 mills for last year, the service-safety figures, obtained through City Auditor William McGraw, indicate. This means a shortage of about $24,000 in operating revenue, most of which must be borne by the service and safety departments.

The $8,000 in unpaid bills left over from the previous administration, Director Moore points out, can be taken care of by issuing certificates of indebtedness and placing the levy outside the limitation if the Baxter relief bill passed by the legislature, becomes a law. Money, however, cannot be borrowed for operating expenses of the city under the terms of the law enacted by the legislature at its last regular session.

Blamos Smith Tax Law. Moore's statement, with regard to the financial condition of the city, follows: "Primarily the trouble with the city's finances can be attributed to the fact that we are compelled to worry along under the limitations of the Smith tax law, which measure, passed when the dollar was about double its present size, was not then even adequate. Almost immediately after its passage the legislature was constrained to pass measures giving the privilege to vote certain levies outside of limitations of law.

"This has been a common practice with school boards all over the state but the electors have most generally manifested a disposition to shy at such a proposition for city finances when they go to the polls, and the city suffers as a consequence.

"Getting down to facts and figures with conditions as they are for the year 1926, it might seem sufficient to say that the total levy for operation of the activities of the city for this year, after state, county schools, sinking fund and other requirements were provided for, amounts to 2.83 mills as against 2.30 mills for last year when the low water mark was supposed to have been reached. This shrinkage of approximately three quarters of a mill means a reduction of $24,000 in the operating revenue of the city as compared with last year and this means that the service and safety departments must mainly bear the loss.

Baxter Bill Offers Relief. In addition to the encumbrance of the automobile license funds last year, a deficit of $8,000 unpaid bills, representing expenditures of various nature, looms up to be provided for this year. If the bill passed week before last by the legislature becomes a law, this can possibly be provided for by issuing certificates of indebtedness and placing a levy outside of limitations of one-quarter of a mill for one year. This, however, is subject to the approval of the state auditor and it cannot possibly be applied further than to take care of the $8,000 referred to above.

"Council cannot appropriate more money than is in sight or in ordinary process of collection. As a result (Continued on Page Six)

Boy Walks 25 Miles to School; Pays With Bull

Onelda, Ky.—J. R. Burns and a few associates founded an institute here a few years ago, where educational opportunities were few.

When the school opened this fall, Burns says, a boy walked from Leslie county, 25 miles away, leading a two-year-old bull, which was all he had to pay his tuition and other expenses. The institute accepted him.

Later a six-year-old girl rode a mule from her home in the same county 42 miles from the school. She had nothing to offer as payment for her schooling except the promise of a pig that would be given to the institute.

A fourteen-year-old girl walked six miles to the school, where she explained that her father did not believe in education, but she wanted to learn to be a teacher.

Boy Scouts Have Authority of Congress to Wear Uniforms

President Coolidge is Honorary Chieftain of Organization Which Has Federal Charter.

The Boy Scouts of America has a federal charter and given permanent protection by an act of congress passed June 15, 1916. It is the only boys' organization having authority of congress to wear the uniform. It shares in this right under the army reorganization law, with the army, the navy, the marine corps, the national guard and the naval militia. These six alone have the right to continuously wear the khaki uniform. This fact is not generally known.

The Boy Scout movement had passed the experimental stage and the organization had proved its worth before congress passed the law mentioned above. The act of congress, approved by the president of the United States, officially confirms the statement made. This movement is recognized as a national asset.

Besides affixing his signature to the act of congress, the president has personally endorsed the Boy Scouts of America. In a part of one of his statements he says:

"Anything that is done or given to increase the efficiency of the Boy Scouts of America is a real contribution to the Nation."

Scouting has made good. Scouting works.

National Organization

Authority of and for the Boy Scouts of America is vested in its national council, which is made up of representatives who come from the chartered local councils.

The honorary president of the national organization is the president, Calvin Coolidge. The honorary vice-presidents are William Howard Taft and Daniel Carter Beard. The president in active charge is Colin H. Livingstone, of Washington, D. C.; the treasurer is George Pratt; the chief scout executive is James E. West.

The Scout Executive

The executive and administrative head of the local council is known as the scout executive. The scout executive is a salaried official. He devotes his time entirely to the work of the Boy Scouts in Columbiana county. The executive has run the different courses of instruction by which these men were themselves trained to become scoutmasters.

No man can serve as a scout executive until he has been commissioned for that work by the national council. The personnel of leadership in the Boy Scouts of America is not a haphazard, easy-going group. It has standards by which the leaders must abide just the same as the boys have for their work in the movement.

Altruistic Idea Plot Basis Of 'Ladies of Evening'

Belasco Play, Staged in Masterly Manner, Comes to Ceramic Theatre Next Thursday.

In "Ladies of the Evening" which David Belasco will present at the Ceramic theatre, Thursday, January 28, for one night only, the author, Milton Herbert Gropper, takes for the basis of his plot the altruistic idea that very few of the young women of the streets are so depraved that they will not readily go on the straight road again if given proper encouragement and wholesome environment. He maintains that most of the girls who go astray are unfortunate in home life or in lack of ability to find occupation that will give them a decent livelihood. He believes that it is the duty of everyone to help such girls to go straight.

In "Ladies of the Evening" the story revolves around the experiment of an artist, who holds such a theory. He meets a young woman of the town and offers her a position as a model in his studio, which she accepts. We see the girl after some months. A wonderful change has been wrought in her, though she does not perceive it herself. The contact with a decent man who has grown to love her and whom she has, although unknown to herself, also grown to love, has remade her spiritually. The interesting experiment is broken up by the visit of one of her old companions who informs her that the artist cares nothing for her; that she is merely the subject of an experiment. In a rage at being made as she thinks, the mere cause of a wage, she rushes from the studio to resume her old life. The change has been too great, however, and she finds she cannot face it. Her soul has had an awakening that will not permit her to do so. She is compelled to go straight.

As may be expected of Mr. Belasco, the play is staged in a masterly manner, every detail of the production being given the most meticulous care. On the roster of the company are Leslie Austen, Vernon Steele, H. Dudley Hawley, Dudley Clements, John Carmody, Bernard McOwen, Jose Yovin, Beth Merrill, Edna Hibbard, Marion Morehouse and Fay Cusick.

Mae Murray Stars In "Merry Widow" at Ceramic Theatre

Mae Murray and originality are synonymous in the minds of motion picture theatre-goers, who look forward with unusual interest to each new picture in which the bizarre little actress appears.

And Miss Murray always keeps faith. But in "The Merry Widow," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, now at the Ceramic theatre, Miss Murray's touch of originality is expressed in a totally different way. To be sure, it is evident in the costumes, her method of expression and dances just as surely as before, but it is also exerted in the character she creates as well. The role of the pert little chorus girl who arrives in Montebello as one of the members of a stranded theatrical troupe, and in staying here becomes the richest woman in Europe, and in the end the queen of the country gives Miss Murray the best opportunity of her career, which she grasps to its fullest extent.

As well as the dashing, flashing creature theatre-goers love so well, a new figure of heartfelt appeal appears in Miss Murray's portrayal of the title role. For all of her bizarre quality she has more human appeal than in some of her past pictures. The naturalness of the story, even with all its color and glamor, makes her characterization pull a little harder at the heart strings. In portraying the difficult role Miss Murray affords theatre-goers a new insight into her histrionic ability.

"The Merry Widow" was directed by Erich von Stroheim for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The noted director made the adaptation and prepared the scenario with Benjamin Glazer from the famous stage play by Victor Leon, Leo Stein and Franz Lehar.

METHUSELAH'S WIFE

THE STORY OF A GIRL EDGAR POE NORRIS WHO MARRIED FOR MONEY

FIFTY-SEVEN.

Noble Harwood, his face drawn, his eyes haggard, mounted the stairs of Harwood House, and listened, motionless, at the door of his wife's suite. Downstairs, the great grandfather's clock, ticking rhythmically in the silence, held up its hands at seven, and bathed them in the morning sunlight flashing through the high windows on the east side of the mansion.

As was usual on Sunday morning, no one was astir at this hour in Harwood House, and he had entered unobserved. No sound came to his ear through the door crevice, and he went on into his own suite. After he had taken off his coat and hat, he walked through his den into his wife's sitting-room, and carefully opened the door to her boudoir. She was lying there, relaxed in sleep, the covers tumbled over her beautiful body, now daphnously clad in a costly garment of silk he had chosen himself. For several minutes he stood there like a statue, gazing at her, then he tiptoed toward the bed. Now, his self-centeredness subdued, he was feeling very badly over the night's events. He had, he decided, acted like a cad, and he wanted so much to make amends. Should he awaken her and plead for forgiveness? No, her poor, tired body needed rest. Having had no sleep to assuage its weariness, his body was aching. He slumped down by the side of her bed, and his eyes closed in heavy sleep.

The hardness of the floor, the uncomfortable position—his head was propped up against the wall—made no difference now.

It was a strange scene that filled Ella's eyes when she came into her mistress' boudoir at nine o'clock in the morning. Of all amazing things! The master asleep on the floor beside his wife's bed! In the face of such a situation, what was she to do? It was too much for her to decide. On tiptoes she departed, and when the door was securely closed behind her, ran down the back stairs to the servant's hall two steps at a time, bursting with news for Louis.

The butler, when he heard the maid's story, was stirred out of his usual calm. It was too much for him, too. He sat down and stared at Ella. What would Mrs. Harwood the first make of this?

At exactly the same hour, Operative Michael Finnerton of the Star Private Secret Service, was painfully typing with two fingers a report of Mrs. Laurel Harwood's hectic movements. If this was a sample of the sort of trailing he was going to have to do, he would need several assistants, and he intended to tell Mrs. Mary Farr Harwood so.

A few minutes before 10 o'clock, Laurel awakened suddenly from a troubled dream. She sat up in bed and thought immediately of her promise to Alice Kenwick to come over in the morning. She reached for her bell-cord to signal Ella, and—what was this? Heavy breathing! Now she stood upon the bed. There was a man in the room? As her figure reared up upon the sheets, she could get a glimpse of the man's body, and recognized the disheveled features of her husband.

A queer feeling in her throat, she slumped down again, and gazed at the intruder. Her head was aching. How dare he come here after last night!

"Noble! . . . NOBLE!" She got down from the bed and burrowed a bare foot into his ribs.

In his sleep he tried to push it away, but she persisted. His eyes opened, and he stared up at her, then at the floor. "Um . . ."

He had, of course, come in here while drunk. Of this she was certain. "Shall I have Burnham come and help you into your room?"

Noble raised himself on elbow. "No, I can get up." He pulled himself up slowly, his eyes upon her. "Oh! A hand shot back to his neck; there was a 'crick' there. The other hand went to his side, where there was a pain of bending intensely.

"Whatever possessed you to sleep there?" she asked coldly.

"I came in to see you, and I guess I went to sleep." He caught her by the hand. "Sit down a minute, dear." He pulled her down on the bed beside him.

"Dearest, I'm a terrible cad. Please forgive me for last night, please." A note of pleading new to her was in his voice, but she was not moved. "I most humbly apologize to you."

"What are you going to do about Harry Yancey?"

"Oh, he'll apologize to Alice all right."

"And you think that fixes things?"

"I" Some of his humbleness disappeared. He was sorry; he expected her to accept his attitude and relent.

"I don't think he intended to do what he did; he wasn't responsible; Alice will understand, I think."

Laurel smiled grimly, and shook her

Death of Rev L. C. Difford

After a year's fight against the ravages of disease, during which he bore with great patience his suffering, the Rev. Lionel C. Difford, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, died in his home in West Fourth street yesterday, thus marking the passing of a second East Liverpool minister of the gospel within less than two weeks.

Like the Rev. William H. Clark, late pastor of the Emmanuel Presbyterian church, whose death occurred on January 15, less than 24 hours after he was stricken with paralysis, the Rev. Mr. Difford, by his humility, his keen interest in the welfare of his neighbor and his willingness to help lighten the burden of those in sorrow, as well as his broadminded nature, had endeared himself to the people of the district.

Under his leadership great strides were made by St. Stephen's parish during the past six years. And notable among the accomplishments, in which he played an important part, was the erection of a parish house which cost approximately $40,000.

Notwithstanding the many duties that fell to his lot by reason of his close attention to the work of his parish, he was a student of civic affairs, while he was also active in the Kiwanis club of which he was a member.

His death is a great loss to the community.

Biological Reactions

Maybe the psychologists were right in the "modern Solomon case" in Detroit, and maybe they weren't. A calm bystander may doubt the wisdom of the Solomonian judgment rendered, with the aid of moving pictures, in this case of two women wanting the same baby.

There was no question of maternity, as in the original case. One woman was admitted to be the natural mother of the child, and the other the foster mother. The question was, which ought to have the child?

The court awarded it to the foster mother, who had cared for it most of the time since its birth, on the recommendation of the psychologists. They, after studying the films made by concealed movie cameras, agreed that the foster mother showed "a much more marked biological emotional reaction" than the natural mother when threatened with loss of the child.

As remarked above, that may have been the right decision. But emotions are not always a good criterion. The woman who cries most easily may not make the best mother. And almost any child shows a "marked biological emotional reaction" when deprived of candy that isn't good for it.

The Mexican Train Robbers

A recent train robbery in Mexico drew passing notice as "another Mexican outbreak," the sort of thing to expect of Mexicans, and was promptly forgotten. It deserved more attention than that, for two reasons.

First reason: The bandits, on entering the train, asked all the Americans present to step forward, then left them unharmed and unrobbed, except for one pistol, which the bandit chief took with profuse apologies.

Second reason: The murderous band was rounded up by Mexican troops, many of them were killed in the fight and the eight prisoners taken were tried, sentenced and executed within 24 hours.

Mexicans do cut up unpleasantly now and then. Americans have often suffered from their depredations. But here is a new kind of behavior, on the part of bandits and authorities alike.

Just suppose, now, that this had been an American train, with some Mexicans aboard, held up in American territory by American bandits.

The 1925 Coin Drop

Tis is indeed a "money-making country." In 1925 United States mints turned out 308,646,886 American coins. There were 10,124,750 pieces of gold, 63,342,036 of silver, 46,271,100 of nickel and 188,180,000 of bronze—our "copper" pennies.

The mints also made money for foreign lands. A total of more than 6,000,000 coins were manufactured for Poland, Peru, Guatemala, Venezuela and Salvador.

It looks like easy money, but all those coins have to be paid for with human labor or natural resources. Just as a stack of metal discs they may be said to take up more room than they are worth. It is what they represent and how they are used that makes them important to civilization.

Child Marriages

Child marriages are usually thought of as occurring only in Asia, or in the more backward European countries.

A representative of the Women's Protective association finds that in Ohio, which has imagined that it had good marriage laws, it is easier for a girl of 14 or 15 to get married than to get a job. For the job, she has to have a working permit, and she has to prove that she is 16 before she obtains it. She can obtain a marriage license without proving her age.

In how many other states is this true?

Heaven help the Caesars of the senate if the nation's taxes not cut before the Ides of March!

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Airplane Weather Observations.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 27.—The Weather Bureau is enthusiastic over the results obtained by weather observations from aeroplanes and has requested that they be increased in number and regularity. This is made known in a news bulletin issued by the Navy Department.

Heretofore, observations have been made during the week and were omitted Saturday and Sunday, but Lieut. Com. H. C. Wick, commanding officer of the naval air station at Anacostia, soon will inaugurate daily observation flights.

Weather observations by aeroplane were begun at the Anacostia station last June. They have been of great value to the Weather Bureau as they further the work of collecting information from the upper air. At first, observations were taken from the surface only, which, although useful and instructive to the country at large, were not sufficient to make for excellence in weather forecasting.

It soon was realized that the absence of information concerning the conditions of the upper air was a serious handicap. Action was taken as rapidly as possible to establish stations and bases where the upper air might be sounded, even as a mariner sounds the sea or a river pilot the channel. These observations were installed and the process begun about 25 years ago.

Kites were first used in the work and afterward balloons were introduced. Through these agencies accurate measurements and data are collected concerning temperature, wind velocity and direction, and moisture, at given altitudes. These observations serve two purposes. They provide material for forecasts and furnish data for special studies.

In fulfilling the first purpose, observations from balloons only are used. These are made twice a day and are computed quickly and telegraphed to various forecast stations throughout the country, where they are charted on maps which represent different altitudes. They are used as a basis in making aviation forecasts. Like wise, besides their dissemination by telephone and telegraph these forecasts are broadcast by radio from Washington, Chicago and San Francisco twice daily.

Research for Special Studies.

In carrying out the second purpose, that of research for special studies, observations obtained by kites and different types of balloons are computed and catalogued. Studies of these data are made with a view of increasing the information concerning the characteristics of the air and the laws that govern storm movements. This increases the bases for forecasting. There is published each month in the Monthly Weather Review a summary of upper air conditions over the country and there also appears at various times in this magazine or in the aeronautical journals the important work of this branch of the Weather Bureau.

The new plan will further the work of collecting data from the upper air. About 7:30 every morning a specially equipped and prepared plane will hop off with a pilot and a passenger. The passenger will be an aerological observer. The plane will have a self-recording instrument called an aerograph or meteorograph which will be exposed above the wing so that it gives continuous readings of temperature, humidity and pressure.

The aerological observer will make notes on the air conditions, such as clouds, that are not recorded by the aerograph. Many queer things often occur in these upper strata. At times when the air on the ground is oppressively hot and sultry, cool refreshing currents are to be found only a few thousand feet up, while at other times when pedestrians are chafing their hands and stamping their feet in order to fight the frigid temperature, gentle, warm, summer breezes are met with only a short space from the earth.

As weather forecasts are determined largely by temperatures in the upper air and by the moisture that is there, it is palpable that such observations will be of great value to the weather man.

After flights such as the one described are completed, the observations are rapidly compiled and the computations obtained through them telegraphed to the Weather Bureau and the aerological section of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics. Forecasters display considerable enthusiasm about such observations. Meteorologists repeatedly have asked that more be made and that the service be extended generally.

Value of Weather Bureau.

Few people realize just what it means in dollars and cents to the United States to have a Weather Bureau which is the most efficient in the world. Temperature forecasts and warnings of bad weather are followed closely by business men all over the country. The maker of ice cream knows that if the next day is to be a hot one he must increase his output, because the demand will be greater. If a cold wave comes he decreases his output for the demand will be less.

With the cold wave prediction greenhouses are closed and boilers fired in anticipation. The great stockyards drain their mains. Gasoline engines are emptied. Concrete work ceases. Ice factories cut down their output and take steps for the protection of exposed ammonia condensers. The railroads arrange for more heat in vegetable and fruit cars, and less ice in meat and butter and egg cars.

The natural gas companies increase the amount of gas flowing into their pipes. Merchants reduce their advertising space, anticipating a great number of stay-at-homes. The coal dealers distribute their coal carefully. If the cold wave is predicted as of long duration, the dredging of sand and gravel is stopped and iron ore piled for shipment is placed in the holds of ships to prevent the bulk from freezing into a solid mass. The charity organizations of the country prepare to help the poor.

These are examples of how the Weather Bureau reaches the people directly and its chief, Charles F. Marvin, declares that its scope will widen. The new readings of the upper air are an example of how it is broadening.

It is a far cry from the days when Professor Cleveland Abbe, one of the pioneer meteorologists of the United States, who was connected with the Weather Bureau in its earliest efforts, was scoffed at for his vague predictions, to the present day when exact forecasts are made. And when the new plan is put into effect, accurate observations, which tell many tales, will be available to forecasters every morning except when the weather is so bad that planes cannot possibly take the air.

Few who breast the Broadway waters see the thorns underneath until too late. Then they are gripped by the frail hope they can come back. People were so kind when they were good fellows. Certainly they will stand by in disaster. But they don't. It is not the way of Broadway. It follows the creed of its narrow dreams.

Eavesdropping in cafes is always interesting. In a 47th street chophouse I sat next table removed from a young girl and her sweetheart. She was gossamerously shelled with rouge and was evidently a steady patron of painless dental parlors. Her smile glittered gold. She told of her job serving "bond brokers" in a downtown restaurant. Of a trip to Coney Island with a boy friend who was fresh. Of her father who was "a no good bum." When the check came, he handed it to her and she paid it. And they sauntered out hand in hand.

The proprietor of this cafe is a sleek-haired young man, and if it is a free puff to say it is Jack Kennedy, he deserves it. He is also interested in several night clubs and has grown rich. He began life as a stage dresser and also essaying small parts. He is a young Irish lad whose love for his mother is a Broadway tradition. Every night she comes to have dinner with him. With prosperity he moved her out of rather shabby quarters into a fine apartment on West End Avenue and it is one of the worries of his life to keep her happy in her new surroundings.

When dawn sifts its gray haze over New York and milk wagons rumble over town there is an army of tattered, demoralized who come out of doorway beds and beg "swigs of milk." Many milk wagon drivers carry several extra bottles to assuage this early thirst without charge. Most of them are shaking from drink. To the police they are known as "milk swiggers" and as a rule they are harmless and are not gathered in with the ordinary run of vagrants.

To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to make. Saves about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose. Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and sugar. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup. To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly. You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or it may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs. Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

WIFE DESERTS STRANGLER OF MEDIA WOMAN

Philadelphia Chiropractor Dejectedly Faces Speedy Trial

PACES HIS CELL

Charged With Killing Milliner and Cutting up Body.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—Dr. David L. Marshall, the "strangling chiropractor," today dejectedly faced the grim prospect of quickly paying the full price for the ghastly murder of Anna Mae Dietrich.

Deserted by his wife who "never wants to see him again" and scorned by his former friends, Marshall, who confessed he carved the Dietrich girl's body to pieces, paced his cell nervously this morning as the authorities went forward with their plans to bring him to a speedy trial.

The 42-year-old chiropractor was to be arraigned today on the charge of murder in the first degree. He is charged with having killed Miss Dietrich, a 34-year-old milliner, dismembering her body in his offices and then hiding the torso and legs near the Rose Tree Hunt club, near Media, Pa., where they were found Thursday.

"Jazz Complex" Explanation
A "jazz complex," which made the girl harass him, was one of his explanations for the murder. "She wanted me to take her to roadhouses and cabarets," he said, "and I was afraid my wife would find out. She wanted to take a whirl at night life before she was too old."

Marshall's wife, who had remained loyal to him until he confessed, had deserted him. With her daughter and mother, she has left the Marshall home in Bywood Heights.

Before leaving she is said to have told a doctor, who was a former friend of her husband, that she is "through" with her husband—that she won't spend a penny for his defense.

Mrs. Marshall had insisted that her husband was innocent until he admitted that he had not only dissected Miss Dietrich's body, but also had crushed out her life with his powerful fingers. As a chiropractor's wife, she had said, she could understand why he feared to have body found in his office and therefore decided to carve it up so that he could dispose of it more easily.

Jealousy Cited as Motive
Relatives of the dead girl cite jealousy of another man, with robbery as a contributing cause, as the real motives behind the gruesome crime. Alex L. Schuhl, brother-in-law of the dead woman, said Miss Dietrich had $75 in cash, a $300 diamond ring and a signet ring worth $90 when she was last seen alive. He pointed out that these were missing when the body was found.

Authorities took the chiropractor over the "murder route" merely, they said, to check up on details of the confession made by Marshall.

"The state is certain it has a first degree murder case," declared District Attorney Fox after he had reviewed the details of the ghastly crime with his assistants. Fox was in court early this morning prepared to demand a quick trial for the slayer.

$24,000 Found Shortage

council must pass an appropriation measure carrying an amount for the safety department less than the combined salaries of the police and fire department, to say nothing of other expenses such as motor maintenance, repairs, sustenance of prisoners, fuel, light, supplies and other items incident to the operation of these departments. It cost last year, in round numbers, $4,000 per month to take care of the safety department and this year there is in sight but $36,000 or $33,000 per month, which is sufficient to run the department approximately eight months.

"The service fund is similarly reduced but may worry through by reducing activities with the gas tax in anticipation, which the law specifies, must be used only for street purposes. Not a dollar of automobile license money or gas tax money can be appropriated to the safety department as the law is mandatory that it be used for street purposes. The automobile license fund is encumbered to the extent of $10,800 as a result of the Mulberry street and the West Eighth street improvements, which this year's funds must pay.

Council's Card On Table

"Council is placing the cards on the table that the people may know just where the city stands. No curtailment or crippling of the police or fire departments is contemplated for three or four months, or until developments show no alternative. No anticipation of funds from the receipts of the municipal court are represented in the figures given. Should it prove extremely remunerative it will, of course, help out. If it should not more than pay it way for somewhere near a year the safety department cannot function as now throughout the year. There is no other source of revenue that can be diverted to this fund. Everyone at all familiar with conditions knows there is no legitimate margin to trim either police or fire fighting forces.

"We cannot borrow money for operating expenses of the city. Under the new law passed by the last legislature we must pay as we go. If we have no money to pay we cannot go. It is the people's problem, and the people are entitled to know the facts as herewith given."

GOV. DONAHEY HAS HIGHEST REGARD FOR STATE UNIVERSITY, HE SAYS

Girl Writer Learns There Isn't Great Deal of Lawlessness, if Any, at Ohio's Great Educational Institution.

(Editor's Note—The following is the article by Katharine Brush on moral conditions at Ohio State university.)

By KATHARINE BRUSH.

In my extreme youth, one teacher was enough to terrify me almost out of my wits, and I'm very sure that if anybody had told me then that I would ever take luncheon with between 900 and 1,000 teachers I should have fainted on the spot from sheer fright. But the other day I did take luncheon with just about that many, and liked it.

One of the largest and most imposing of all the large, imposing structures which line the university campus is the administration building, where the president and his staff have their offices. The third floor of this building is devoted to the use of members of the faculty. Here they have their reception rooms and club rooms, and here, in a huge hall dotted with little round tables and flooded with sunlight, they take their noon meal. Between 12 and 2 on any weekday the place is crowded, and a glance around it gives one a satisfied feeling, a belief that there can be nothing rotten in the state of Denmark as long as Denmark is ruled by men and women like these. The men, of course, are in the great majority, a majority of almost 50 to 1. Some of them are quite old and gray, others so young that they look like students grown serious. And they all sit around the little tables, eating and talking and smoking, even as you and I.

He Looks The Part.

It was in this room that I first beheld President Rightmire, a tall, lean gentleman with gold-bowed spectacles. At the moment when my eyes first rested upon him he was consuming a baked pork chop, but this did not detract from his dignity nor from his air of being absorbed in matters of the gravest importance. Dr. Rightmire has been acting president of Ohio State for only about two months, having succeeded the beloved Dr. Thompson, who resigned in November. If one can judge by externals, he will serve well, for he looks like a college president, acts like one, talks like one, I know, because he was good enough to talk to me.

Our conversation took place in his office. This is a big room paneled in highly-polished wood and guarded by two secretaries whose motto seems to be, they shall not pass. It took me an hour, but I did it, and sat there feeling a little like a sophomore about to be expelled. The president spoke briefly, clipping off his sentences. He said that the university was large, and its student body scattered all over the city, and that unfortunate circumstances occasionally arose. He said that miscreants were always punished when discovered and always would be, and that it was regrettable that the matter had to be attended by so much unfavorable publicity. He said the committee appointed at the governor's suggestion, consisting of three of the trustees and himself, would continue its investigation until such time as the college was rid of any students and faculty members who might be proved undesirable. He declined to hazard a guess as to the number of wrong-doers who might be found, but he implied that he did not expect them to be very numerous. "And that," he concluded, "is all I can say at this time."

Dean Gives Views.

I talked to Miss Jessica Foster, a kindly, sweet-faced woman, quite young, who has lately been installed as dean of women. Miss Foster said that the rumors regarding conditions at State had been grossly exaggerated and that it was a great pity. Similar statements came in tones of varying indignation from every instructor and every student to whom I talked. "Well," I thought, "this is the school attitude. Now let's see what the citizens of Columbus have to say." I consulted several of them. One said, "There's a little drinking and a little petting, and all that. But not much. I don't think the students cut up anywhere near as badly as the girls and boys around town do." Another said, "Oh, you hear a lot of stories, but they're mostly gossip. Those kids as a whole are fine." And so on.

At last I went to Governor Donahey. He was the man who had demanded the housecleaning at O. S. U. Why had he considered a housecleaning necessary, if all was as circumspect around the campus as the students and faculty and general public claimed? I wanted to ask him. So I procured an appointment, waited half an hour in a vast, beautiful antechamber carpeted in crimson with paintings of former Ohio governors on the walls, and finally was ushered into his office. The governor was seated at a big carved desk. He motioned me to a chair opposite him, and beamed in a jovial sort of way through a pair of shell-rims. My acquaintance among governors is not what you could call extensive, but Mr. Donahey seemed to me to be a particularly nice, human governor. I wasn't half as afraid of him as I had been of Dr. Rightmire, and when he asked me if this was my third year at the university (the office was poorly lighted of course) I at once was all for having him re-elected.

He said: "I have the highest possible regard for Ohio State University. I think it is a splendid institution, and I personally know nothing as to the truth or falsehood of these rumors. I simply know that the rumors are afraid. So I say, let us inventuate them. If there is any lawlessness at the university, let's get rid of it! Let's stamp it out! If there is none, let's tell the people of Ohio that there is none, and be able to tell them so with authority."

Daylight Saving Torture Time.
Editor, Review-Tribune:
Dear Sir—In the East Liverpool Review-Tribune issue of last Saturday, I took notice that the Chamber of Commerce endorsed the Daylight Saving time. This move was made, no doubt, with all diplomacy in favor of the Industrial Baseball league. I think baseball is one of our cleanest games and it is enjoyed by the great majority of people, but for the sake of this pleasure, we ought not to torture ourselves in other respects. I, by no means, wish to be antagonistic, nor be a faultfinder, but I think we have plenty of sufferings without adding to them. I shall give my views regarding the Daylight Saving time, which may be accepted or rejected, by any or all, according to their merits or demerits.

First point. The present time, of this locality, is already almost a half hour faster than sun time, and by advancing the clocks one hour our time would be almost an hour and a half ahead of sun time. At Cincinnati, O., the regular time is one hour slower than our present time, but that city, being so much further west, with its regular time, is almost a half hour slower than sun time, and by advancing the clocks there would make the new time only about a half hour faster than sun time.

Second point. One very disagreeable feature of winter time is rising before daylight. The days are growing longer now and many of us who were obliged to rise before daylight during the dreary winter are now beginning to rise at the dawn of day, which seems so much easier and more cheerful than rising in total darkness. By advancing the clocks one hour we would throw us back into that disagreeable feature of winter again by rising in darkness. To me it seems, like a drowning man getting his head above water and some one pushing him under again. Why torture ourselves without gain?

Third point. Many wives and mothers now rise at 5 o'clock, and why should they be obliged to rise at 4 o'clock, our present time? It is true, the favorites of Daylight Saving time offer a substitute by maintaining that when the time is advanced one hour people will retire one hour earlier. This sounds all right in theory but it does not work out so well in practice. Nature cannot be changed so easily. I usually retire at 10 o'clock, but when very tired I sometimes retire at 9. I retire at 9, but I first fall asleep at the regular time, 10 o'clock. It would take nature almost to the time of setting the clock back in the fall to adjust itself to go to sleep earlier. Furthermore, during the extreme warm weather in the summer time few, if any, are able to retire until after midnight, and in that event everybody needs the early cool morning hours in which to snatch the much needed sleep and rest in order to withstand the burning heat of the next day. According to the new time we would have to sacrifice one of those cool morning soothing hours by rising one hour earlier.

Fourth point. Why should the clocks be disturbed? Why not let the clocks as they are and let the owners of factories or stores start one hour earlier and quit an hour earlier, if their employees want it so? I think I can give a solution of the question. The ones in favor of the Daylight Saving time know very well that, unless the clocks are changed, few would want to start work earlier. The people must first of all be blindfolded or deceived by advancing the clocks, making them believe it is all the same as to whether one retires one hour earlier and rises one hour earlier or retires one hour later and rises one hour later. As I pointed out above, this retires and rising earlier and retiring and rising one hour later is not so easily done.

Fifth point. I have taken notice that, in the past years, baseball games in this locality are postponed from the early part of the afternoon to later in the evening to avoid the extreme heat, why then rise so early in order to quit early to go to the ball game?

Sixth point. Stores are in town to do business, and in order to do business they must be arranged so as to accommodate the public. Many out-of-town people come to East Liverpool in the afternoon, seldom in the forenoon, for the sake of shopping, and if the stores are closed one hour earlier there will be little or no time left in which to buy. To me it seems that business people who close their stores earlier in the afternoon saw off the very limb on which they are sitting.

Why not let the good old sun regulate the time for us, as of old, and let the gentle morning dawn awaken us from our sweet slumbers instead of the cruel hammer of the alarm clock shock our nerves in beating away on the bell until we respond by forcing ourselves out of bed in the darkness of the early morning hour.

German Liner Fights Father Neptune in Effort to Save British Freighter as Storm Whips Atlantic

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Encouraged by the rescue of six men from the slowly sinking British freighter Laristan, the crew of the German liner Bremen carried on a stubborn battle today against Father Neptune in his fiercest mood.

The storm that has raged for several days in the Atlantic, playing havoc with shipping, continued unabated as it determined to tighten its claim upon the lives of the 24 men still remaining on the ill-fated Laristan which is floundering near Halifax.

A message received by the Canadian department of marine and fisheries from the Bremen stated: "Picked up six men from Laristan. Twenty-four still aboard. Unable to render assistance at present due to heavy seas."

The Canadian government is holding the tug Heldeir in readiness at Halifax to rush to the aid of the Laristan as soon as the storms abate.

In another sea lane the United States liner President Roosevelt, tossing about on the mountainous seas, is straining every plate to keep in sight the freighter Antioch, whose engine room is filled with water and was not expected to survive the second night.

Two brave seamen of the Roosevelt's crew have already given their lives in attempting to reach the drifting Antioch and the latest wireless message from Captain George Fried, of the liner, painted the fate of the Antioch in a gloomy light.

"Antioch seems capsize, empty," his message read. "Men still visible aboard bulk. Weather rough. Snow, rain, squalls. Seas too rough to get line aboard. She unable to show any light. Hope to keep her in sight with searchlights."

"Look for improved weather," the third S. O. S. that arrested the attention of radio listeners Monday night has not been traced down. The call of distress was partially identified as having come from the freighter Corvus somewhere in the Caribbean Sea, but it was not determined whether the Corvus had sent the signal or merely relayed it. The Corvus has not been heard from since.

pected he will issue a statement that will make some of his other criticisms of the war and navy departments appear a pale pink by comparison. Among other things, it is expected that he will challenge the veracity of the statement that his resignation is accepted "for the good of the service."

Announcement of Col. Mitchell's resignation was made by the attorney who defended him at his court-martial, Representative Frank Reid, R., of Illinois.

Col. Mitchell himself had nothing to say. He was cordial enough to newspaper questioners, but all queries on his case were referred to Reid. He spent the morning at his home, playing with his baby daughter.

No announcement of his future plans will be made until after February 1.

12 CONVERTS AT SERVICES

Rev. M. M. Bussey in Nazarene Church Pulpit.

Twelve persons professed conversion at the Tuesday evening revival service at the Church of the Nazarene, corner St. Clair and Lincoln avenues. Rev. M. M. Bussey, New Jersey evangelist, spoke on the subject, "The Flower or Young Manhood." Special musical numbers were featured.

The sermon tonight will be "The Greatest Conflict of the Aera." In his discourse last evening the evangelist said:

"This young man was clean in morals, chaste in language, and strong in body, a splendid channel through which God could work."

"This commandment came to him, Stand thou still while that I may show thee the word of God." God has a personal message for every young man.

"God's prophet loved this young man. If we live clean and walk in paths of righteousness the best people on earth will love us. God gave him another heart, a converted heart, so that his righteousness was not his own, but was from God."

"The people of God do not have to have easy lives to get to heaven, but God is with them to help them through every difficulty. God in you enriches the life, gives strength to character, and puts the stamp of safety upon you."

Kiwanis Entertain

Hugh F. Laughlin directed the singing of "America."

Responding to Toastmaster Cline's first call following dinner, Rev. B. R. Johnson, pastor of the First Church of Christ, delivered a 10-minute talk, chiefly on humorous topics.

Then came the distribution of attendance prizes for the ladies. Secretary Gruber, in charge of this part of the program, was assisted by Miss Elizabeth Cline, daughter of President and Mrs. C. C. Cline, and Russell Heddlerton, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Heddlerton.

Awards were made to Mrs. D. F. Nellis, Mrs. Fred George, Cora Willams, Mrs. Russell Heddlerton, Mrs. Gus Harris, Miss Elizabeth Cline, Mrs. Dewitt Irwin, Miss Ruth Heddlerton, Mrs. Okey Heddlerton, Mrs. Harry Hoffman, Mrs. John Golden, Christina Laughlin, Mrs. Ralph Sayre, Mrs. Clyde Larkins, Mrs. Harry Keys, Mrs. Glen Dawson, Mrs. Charles Larkins, Mrs. Alvin Fisher, Mrs. James Reese, Mrs. Clarence Cline and Mrs. G. M. Roman.

Clara Chambers, pianist, gave an excellent interpretation of "The Spanish Dance," by Scherwenka, and was forced to respond to an encore, for which he played, "To a Wild Rose," by McDowell.

Prof. Laughlin's Kiwanis Glee club followed with two selections—"The Winter Song," by Bullard, and "I Love a Lassie," by Walt, both songs being marked by a high form of harmony and expression. Members of the group were Olen H. Dawson, Attorney Walter B. Hill, Dr. Clyde C. Larkins, Cyril Taylor, John Golden, Kurt Bergner, Okey Heddlerton, Robert Laughlin, Wilbur Glenn and Robert Douglas. Claire Chambers accompanied them.

Two readings, in dialect, given by Miss Ruth Heddlerton, were an interesting part of the entertainment. Miss Heddlerton's subjects were "Mon Pierre," by Amabury, and "Mia Carlotta," by T. A. Daly, and in both she exhibited a mastery of the dialects in which she told her stories.

Robert Douglas, possessor of a rich full baritone voice, sang "Invictus," by Huhn, and, in response to an encore, sang "Noon and Night," by Hawley.

Immediately following the program, tables and chair were cleared for the dance that followed. Music was furnished by the Sturges-Miller orchestra.

the body of an unfortunate insane woman.

The account of the miracle runs as follows: A woman whose mind had become unbalanced was carried to the chapel of St. Joseph's hospital, where the "exorcism ritual" was performed in Latin, not understood by the patient.

The question, "Who are you?" was answered, apparently from the throat of the woman in a deep masculine voice, "BEELZEBUB." Asked why he had taken possession of the woman, Beelzebub replied, "BECAUSE OF MALEDICTION."

The fiend promised to leave the woman at 2 o'clock that afternoon, but did not actually leave until 5:30, which is about what you would expect of a demon. The woman then relaxed and is getting better.

This miracle, not as yet vouched for by church authorities, was an everyday occurrence in the middle ages, when demons were more active, numerous and efficient than at present.

It is romantic, refreshing and interesting to have one of them resume business at the old stand in these days of radios, automobiles and newspapers. It is said, however, that the voice of Milwaukee's Beelzebub indicated irritation and a feeling that times are not what they were in the good old days.

Congressman Berger, of Wisconsin, introduced a resolution asking President Coolidge to rebuke Mussolini for harsh Fascist methods in dealing with certain religious, political, Masonic and trade union organizations.

Berger, one of the best educated men in congress, knows that wise governments mind their own business, and allow other governments to do likewise.

President Coolidge also knows that "no man ever got poor minding his own business," and will not tell Mussolini how to run Italy.

The Greek government raises money so simply as to justify the Russian saying, "An Armenian is as smart as two Jews, a Greek as smart as four Armenians."

Greece cuts 25 per cent from the redemption value of all bank notes in circulation. It is as though you read tomorrow morning that hereafter your $20 bill would be worth only $15, and redeemed at that price by the government.

Mr. Lewis impressed upon the workers that they should confine their efforts to their list of prospects. He said that each team should secure approximately $200 in order to attain the quota.

Work is Lauded.
"Each of you men here must do your part if we are to reach this quota by Wednesday evening," said Attorney W. H. Vodrey. "None of you need to apologize to any one for this drive for funds. This is a sound investment for the community. We are doing this to make the boys of our community a little better. The ultimate success of this campaign is written now, but each of us must do our level best."

Rev. A. E. Sims, pastor of the First Christian church of Chester, spoke briefly about Boy Scout work in which he was interested before coming to Chester. "I have two college degrees but I learned something from the Boy Scout manual that I did not receive in college," he said. "This is surely a worthy movement."

Joseph H. Smith, St. Clair avenue baker, told of the Church Lads' Brigade, an organization similar to the Boy Scouts, of which he was a member in England 25 years ago. His remarks were greeted with applause.

Scout Executive Wilson explained that any boy 12 years of age or over was eligible to membership in the scouts. He cited a case of a friend who was a sophomore in college who was still a member of the scouts.

Dr. Bode announced that members of his division would start work at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning and would not finish until 6 o'clock in the evening. He expressed confidence that his co-workers would carry off honors in the campaign.

Mr. Stevenson replied that each of his nine teams was expected to reach its quota and that he had no doubt his side would be an easy winner.

A long blackboard has been placed on the wall of the banquet hall on which the reports will be recorded as they are made tonight.

Members of the executive committee will canvass the manufacturers, merchants and other larger contributors. Much of this work was done before the campaign but no announcement of the amount which already had been collected was made at last night's meeting.

HEAR REPLEVIN CASE FRIDAY

Service Director to Probe Sale of City Property.

A replevin action filed before Mayor W. L. Fogo by Service Director J. J. Grafton, for the recovery of property once owned by the city, and which it is claimed, was sold during the former administration, will be thrashed out on Friday night in police court.

According to papers filed by Director Grafton, Thomas Jackson, former garbage collector, bought a tank and a part of a road scraper from the former administration.

Jackson, it is claimed, asserts he paid for the property. Director Grafton questions whether municipally owned property can be disposed of in the way in which it was.

The tank, according to city officials, was purchased several years ago from a local boiler manufacturing company and was used but little.

Jackson was dismissed the first of the year by Mayor Fogo and Ed Grimes named in his stead.

One of The Oldest Businesses

The business of banking had its humble beginnings in empires long forgotten, and has kept pace with civilization through all the ages.

Many centuries before the time of Christ, money changers were active in Assyria. Later on, Athens, Carthage and Rome had their banker-merchants. And about the year 1400, the Venetian bank began to accept deposits and issue notes, thus introducing banking in its modern sense. Today, with ages of development back of them, banks are indispensable helpmates of all business.

Though the Potters National claims no particular distinction for age, we have, for 44 years, played an important part in successfully aiding the commercial and industrial growth of East Liverpool. And with the added facilities and conveniences of our new home, YOU will find Potters National Service even more valuable in helping you to develop your financial interests to the fullest.

REPORT IS FILED ON STATE CROPS

A final analysis of West Virginia's agricultural production shows its fifteen leading crops in 1925 to have an estimate of $60,118,000, as compared to $59,770,600 in 1924, or an increase of $348,000. This was due to an increase in area planted as well as higher prices for some commodities. The area planted in 1925, not including orchards, was 1,731,000 acres, which was $1,000 acres more than planted to the same crops in 1924.

The change of acreage is of still further importance, as it shows there had been a decrease in the hay acreage and a large increase in grains and other more valuable crops. Pasture and plow lands that have been idle were plowed, and that together with the breaking of meadows show a decided increase in cultivated crops. The final estimates are based on returns from farmers of the state to John W. Smith, West Virginia's commissioner of agriculture, and Bernard Gibbs, of the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics, together with information obtained from the U. S. bureau of census.

STATE PLANS TO SELL ROAD BONDS

West Virginia will sell another $3,000,000 block of state road bonds on February 2, it was announced today. The new issue, for which bids are sought at this time because of favorable bond market conditions, are a part of the $20,000,000 authorized by the 1925 legislature and after their sale will leave $3,750,000 still to be sold.

The rate of interest will be fixed by the bidder, in multiples of one quarter, subject to the limitation that the interest shall not be more than 4 1/2 per cent, and the bonds will be sold to the bidder offering the lowest interest rate and the highest price at that rate. Under the constitution bonds cannot be sold for less than par and accrued interest.

"Sporting Venus" Photoplay Feature Booked at Strand

That irrepressible director, Marshall Neilan, turns back from the tragedy of "Tess" to the field of comedy, in his latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "The Sporting Venus," which is coming to the Strand theatre tomorrow. Also turning back from the sombreness of a D'Urberville is Blanche Sweet, who has in "The Sporting Venus," her first light role in a long, long time. Miss Sweet, bobbled and saucy, reveals a heretofore unknown phase of her personality, because it is the first story in which she has appeared where the heroine has been of the flapper type.

Featured in the cast are Ronald Colman and Lew Cody. Mr. Colman has achieved considerable popularity lately in such pictures as "The White Sister," "Romola" and "Tarnish," in "The Sporting Venus" he has the role of a Scotch hero, which makes everything just right, since Colman is a Scotchman himself. Mr. Cody, whose villainous, but pleasant, manners on the screen have graced many a picture, is less villainous and even more pleasant than usual in "The Sporting Venus." He appears as a defunct prince, whose creditors are forcing him slowly but surely into marriage.

Y. M. C. A. Bathing Pool Open; Plan Water Activities

The bathing pool at the Y. M. C. A. is again available to the membership after having been closed since October because of a breakdown in the water heating system. A new system, which has been installed, provides a circulating arrangement where the temperature of the pool is kept at 80 to 87 degrees, Fahrenheit at all times. Water in the bottom of the pool is the same temperature as that at the top.

Harvey Price, boys' work director, has planned special water activities for members of the intermediate, elementary and junior groups this week. The program will include races, novelties and aquatic stunts of various kinds.

Here are the winners in the contest for the elementaries, conducted yesterday:

Sixty-foot swim—First, William Fischer, time 11 seconds; second, Lester Tucker, 12 seconds; third, Frank Edwards, 14 seconds.

Relay swim—Won by team in charge of Captain Lester Tucker. Horse and rider swim—Won by team in charge of Captain William Fischer.

Plan Trip to France.

BUCHYRUS, O.—Several members of the American Legion post here have started savings accounts for a trip to France to attend the legion convention in 1927. A local bank has been designated by the legion officers as a depository for the funds.

Fighting Huge Waves

How often we read of the battles and hardships of the intrepid mariner, running into and through storms, fighting the huge waves never swerving from the duties aboard ship which he knows are necessary to the safety of the hundreds of passengers aboard, and one of the first to brave any condition demanded of him in his line of duty. The same is true of thousands of people who were never on a boat, perhaps never viewed a body of water larger than a river or creek, but who are bravely battling daily for their own lives, just because there is some disarrangement of the stomach, indigestion, constipation, kidney and liver trouble, rheumatism, headaches, sleeplessness, etc. Their very existence is made miserable, and may give up despairingly of ever securing relief. But there is hope for this class of sufferers in Kad-lok, the wonderful herbal stomach trouble and system builder, which has now been on the market for years, and which has restored thousands of citizens of this and other states back to normal health. Hardly a day passes but what grateful people write to the Kad-lok laboratories at Columbus, O., telling of their almost miraculous recovery to health.

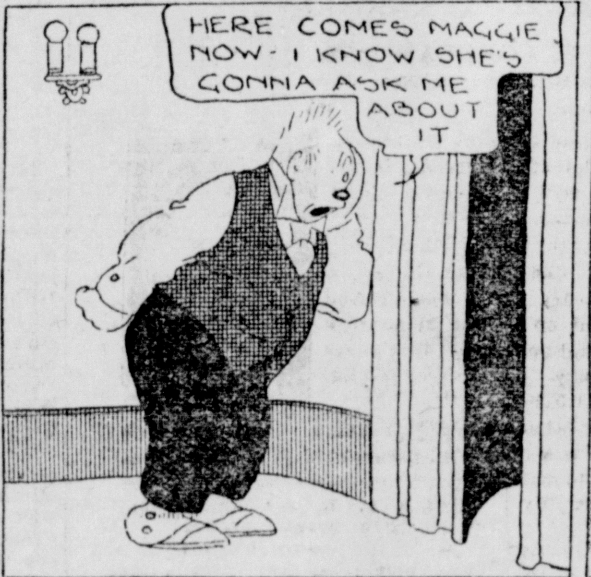

Mr. John C. Rose, 1402 1/2 Crescent road, Charleston, W. Va., says: "I was run down, with indigestion, constipation, nervousness, loss of sleep, rheumatic pains all over the body. After taking Kad-lok I am a well man, feel fine. Kad-lok was just what I needed." Kad-lok is sold in East Liverpool at Mathews Cut Rate Store and other drug stores.

Girl Gained 7 Pounds Nine Years an Invalid

That's just what McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets did for the Babcock Girl—and is doing as much for tens of thousands of thin, underweight, weak and discouraged people all over America.

The sugar coated, pleasant to take tablets should be given to children instead of the vile stomach upsetting oil itself—they surely do help the frail, delicate little ones and 60 tablets cost but 60 cents at Mathews' Medicine Store or any druggists.

Read this letter if you have a child that needs to gain health and strength:

"My little girl was stricken with infantile paralysis when she was 5 months old and was an invalid for 9 years—when I saw an ad in the paper that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets would build up wasted tissues. I brought a box and she gained eight boxes, she gained seven pounds. Thanks to McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, after trying almost everything else on the market, she is on the road to recovery and goes to school every day." Mrs. L. Babcock, Appleton, Wis.

Imitations of McCoy's may be offered but be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine and if after thirty days' treatment you are not delighted with results—why, get your money back.

NEWEST MODES

May Provide New Tennis Styles for Riviera Sightseers.

By Frederick K. Abbott.

CANNES, Jan. 27.—Having been satisfied by the brand of tennis Miss Helen Willis has supplied, the Riviera sightseers are now anxious to know what she plans to do in the way of furnishing new tennis styles.

Miss Willis' eye-shade is already popular here, but now it is whispered that she has been in consultation with some French modistes and intends to display some rather unusual new models in tennis garb. Up until now the California girl has been content to appear on the courts in very sensible white and gray, occasionally donning a brilliant cerise or blue sweater.

Inasmuch as Suzanne Lenglen has long been the accepted leader of France in tennis fashions, there is much conjecture as to just what Miss Willis may have to offer in the way of modes.

Suzanne may change her mind and seek an earlier meeting with Miss Willis, it was reported today. Although Miss Lenglen has been announced as scratching in next week's singles at Nice it was stated today that she might re-consider. It is understood here that Miss Lenglen is of the opinion that the American girl can not maintain her form with as frequent match play as she is now indulging in and if she falls off in her form during the week the French girl may take advantage of this and enter in the singles at Nice next week. Otherwise it is not likely that the two rivals will meet before the middle of February, if then.

There are some who say that Suzanne would just as soon let interest in the possibilities of a Willis-Lenglen match simmer until Wimbledon in June.

Miss Willis is quietly proceeding in her own way and apparently is not worrying a bit about whether she meets Suzanne early or late, in fact she feels that the longer the meeting is delayed the better her chances will be, for every day finds her better acclimated and more accustomed to the French tennis conditions.

Dempsey's Restaurant Makes Money;
Old Prize Fighters Wash Dishes

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—Jack Dempsey has opened a new cafe in Los Angeles and it's proving a money-maker.

The heavyweight boxing champion's latest business venture is located next to his hotel, but the guests of his hotel are only a small part of the crowd visiting the cafe.

The cuisine at Dempsey's place is not bad, but the crowd comes to see the champion, rather than eat.

Every evening during dinner, Dempsey walks through the cafe several times. Usually he eats dinner there. Often his wife, Estelle Taylor, the actress, dines with him.

Around the cafe, which is on a corner, low windows face the streets and here is a favorite spot for small boys of Los Angeles. Almost any hour during the early evening, one may glance from Dempsey's tables to the windows to see youngsters pointing soiled fingers at the heavyweight.

Grown-ups, too, frequently crowd about the cafe, seeking an intimate look at the boxing king as he moves about the tables, nodding to friends and ordering about waiters and bell-boys.

Dempsey always has about him a score of former boxers, mostly sparring partners in the days of long ago. His new cafe has given employment to many of these friends. It is said that even the dishwashers in the place are prizefighters and some of the cooks at one time held forth in the champion's training camps as employees of various kinds.

One of Dempsey's brothers acts as manager and greets every visitor for the champion.

Jack Art Jewelers' Five
Tangle With Brooks
Outfit on High Gym
Saturday, Feb. 13.

Contracts were signed this week for the appearance here Saturday night, Feb. 13, of the Canton Jack Art Jewelers, well known road club, for a game with "Boots" Brooks' Helme Collegians. The game will be played in the high school gymnasium.

The Art Jewelers' five is one of the best road organizations of Canton and is piloted by Rex McConnell, former local man who has been associated for more than 10 years with basketball activities. McConnell promises local basketball fans they will see a real team in action on their visit here.

The Jewelers team is composed of ex-McKinley high school players and to date has won 14 out of 17 games played. The regular lineup will be brought to East Liverpool and local fans will be given an opportunity of seeing Mutt Stahler, said to be the smallest forward playing semi-pro ball today. He was the sensation of McKinley high last season.

Independents

The Powers registered their fourteenth victory in 16 starts last night on the M. E. court by defeating the Independents by the decisive score of 91 to 51.

The Powers held the lead in the first half which ended with a 29-28 score. They came back in the last half strong and hit the basket almost at will. Dickey, Mensforth and Jester were the point makers for the winners.

The Powers are slated to meet the Aces Friday night on the M. E. floor.

German Will Finish Fourth, Says 'Murch'

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—What may be the prelude of another international controversy was set in motion today when Loren Murchison, America's greatest indoor sprinter, gazed down the nostril at Hubert Houben, German champion, and spoke in rather deprecating accents of the Teuton's ability. He picked Houben to finish no better than fourth when he steps out against the field of American sprinters at the Millrose games on February 4.

The statement was made to friends here and was offered merely as a personal opinion by one who had seen the German run. Unfortunately, the view was from the rear. Houben beat both Murchison and Charley Paddock abroad.

Loren didn't say who were the three Americans that figured to head Houben at the tape here. One of them undoubtedly is named Murchison and not without reason. At the distances of the Millrose sprint series, 40, 50 and 60 yards indoors, "Murch" virtually is unbeatable. De Har Hubbard and Francis Hussey probably are the others he has in mind as the superiors of Houben.

Just why the latter can be such a riot abroad and figure only as an also ran here Murchison is understood to have declined to say.

However, some of the boys have begun to whisper behind the German's record and many of his victories have been made possible by what is technically known as "beating the gun." There is nothing fundamentally dishonest about this practice; all sprinters have tried it at one time or another. It is simply discounted here because the boys know they can't get away with it against competent officials and we have few, if any, that are not.

Houben is known as a remarkably fast man out of his holes and foreign competition is equally famous for the fact that they don't set man back for "breaking" off the mark. This, of course, places a premium on a sprinter's ability to get under way before the gun.

In the Olympic games of some years ago, this system resulted in an endless series of false starts, no sprinter feeling himself justified in letting a rival get away as long as there wasn't a penalty involved. In the last games at Paris, they had a rule that disqualified any man who "broke" more than three times but it was not generally observed by starting officials. There was no provision about setting a man back a yard for each "break," however, and false starting was pretty general.

Jack Donaldson, the old professional sprinter from Australia, and Jake Weber, Fordham trainer, have had charge of the German's workouts since his arrival. They report that he has been quite steady on the mark but, then, Houben has been running alone. There is no particular nourishment in a man trying to beat himself away from the starting line.

Park Boulevards Win From Chester Quint, 32-20.

The United Presbyterians nosed out the Baptists, 27 to 24, on the M. P. court, and the Park Boulevards, trimmed the Chester Presbyterians, 32-20, while the Lutheran Juniors were winning from the Christian Juniors, 60-17, on the Odd Fellows court in Sunday school league engagements last night.

The U. P. Baptist clash was rough and fast, with the Baptists spurring to within three points of tying up the count in the final quarter after trailing, 16 to 11, at the half.

F. Kirkham and Cox duelled to a deadlock in the matter of making field goals in the Park Presbyterian battle, each getting six. Five two-pointers by Barnes, Park forward, decided the issue.

The Lutheran Juniors enjoyed a runaway with the Christian Juniors. Brown, of the Lutherans, rang up 17 field goals.

M'GRAW LIKES
HIS PITCHERS

Optimistic Over Outlook For 1926 Ball Curvers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Being a professional optimist at heart, John McGraw recently opened his mouth and allowed as to how the 1926 Giants will have their best pitching staffs since the mellow, old championship days of 1905.

He made the observation while rubbing mental hands of great glee over the transaction that resulted in Jimmy Ring coming to the Polo grounds, and the writer is inclined to believe that John spoke first and thought afterward, or else was merely talking to hear his teeth rattle.

Ring will top off a pitching staff embracing Kent Greenfield, Fred Fitzsimmons, Virgil Barnes, Art Nehf, Hugh McQuillan and a few casual others. If Greenfield and Fitzsimmons pay dividends on their 1925 promise, it will be better than any pitching staff McGraw has had since the war. If they do not, it will be worse. Nehf is almost through and McQuillan is as unreliable as an elderly pair of suspenders. McGraw may be placing too much faith in Greenfield and Fitzsimmons. We have had one-year pitchers before.

However, granting that they all come through, there is little doubt that the 1926 staff will click with reasonable adequacy. But rate the collection above anything that operated since 1905? It isn't being done.

The write, for example, wouldn't like to trade the 1926 staff for Matty Marquard, Tesreau and Crandall, who brought pennants here in 1912 and 1913. Nor would he see any reason to make the exchange for Matty Marquard, Crandall, Witase and Ames, of the pennant-winning team of 1911. As a matter of fact, it is not altogether certain that the 1926 staff figures to be as good as that of 1917, featuring Sallee, Benton and Schupp, left-handers all, and at the top of their stride at that, plus Tesreau and Peritt, right-handers.

All of those mentioned proved their

Pirate Leader Talks Shop at Banquet Tendered by Toronto Fans Last Night; Discusses World's Series Plays and Players; Secretary Sam Watters and Coach Jack Onslow Accompany Buc Pilot.

"SKIPPER BILL" McKechnie, leader of the champion Pittsburgh Pirates, may lead his Buccaneers against the Phillies in the 1926 world series of the prayers of Smoky City baseball fans and the fortunes of baseball as they are cut out for the coming campaign are in accord. Pandom in the Keystone state, tasting victory in a world series last year, has started to whet its appetite at this early stage for an all-Pennsylvania world series this season and McKechnie would not be at all averse to the proceedings.

McKechnie, Coach Jack Onslow and Secretary Sam Watters of the Pittsburgh club were guests at a banquet given last night in the Methodist Protestant church in Toronto. Approximately 150 baseball enthusiasts from the East Liverpool, Toronto, and Steubenville districts attended the event.

McKechnie discussed pennant chances for the coming campaign—he thinks they're great! He discussed players and plays of the recent world's series. He thinks he's got a great aggregation of ball hands, and believes nothing will stop them this year, not even McGraw.

Brief talks were given by Onslow and Watters, A. C. Lewis and Roy McLean, of Steubenville, Guy Johnson and "Doc" Kilgus, of Toronto. A musical program rounded out the evening's festivities.

Although there is not a man on the Pittsburgh club who minimizes the possibilities of an entry piloted by John McGraw, dean of all pennant winners, the players themselves are confident of another league pennant in 1926. The belief expressed is that, with the New York Giants out of the way, the Buccaneers will have little difficulty in outdistancing the other six clubs, Cincinnati Reds included.

They cite facts to substantiate their opinion. Pointing out that the winter thus far has failed to produce any trades of real consequence, the Pittsburgh players and their followers hope the Pirates' already notorious hitting faculties will be even more evident this season through the addition of

T. S. T. bowlers are champions of the Industrial duckpin league for the season nearing a close.

The issue was decided last night at the Liberty alleys when Laughlin No. 1, their nearest rivals, dropped one of three games to Helmsies and also dropped their chance to tie it up with the league leaders. The Laughlins shot a total of 2,062 in their match against the Helmsies, but most of the marksmanship came in the second and third games, after the premier had been lost. The Helmsie five hung up a 715 in the first frame and Laughlin's 609 couldn't compete.

T. S. T. finishes first—Laughlin 1 second, Smith News third, and Helmsies fourth.

And the Helmsies can boast a little, too. They took over the standing of the American Express outfit early in the season, which at that time was right at the bottom, and worked their way up to a 500 berth.

Wilkinson was high single game honors, with 218. Mannypenny knocks down the laurels for three games, with 523. Laughlin 1 wins team honors for one game, with 809 and also for three games with 2131.

Canne owns the highest average. He scattered the timber for a season's mark of 140.

The Elks and Flemings will battle tonight on the Liberty runways.

It is an annual event and one of the outstanding clashes of the season here.

The Elks will probably lineup with Patterson, McMillen, Aley, Wells and Helmsie. Fleming's five will probably see Canne, Greene, Fleming, Adams and Smith in action.

ability over a stretch of several seasons while the same cannot be said at this time of Fitzsimmons and Greenfield. Indeed, the former joined the club late in 1925 and didn't pitch more than a half dozen games.

He was good then, but the writer would prefer to see more of him and say less, pending developments.

HARRIS SIGNS
NEW CONTRACT

Will Get $100,000 for Three Years Report.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Stanley ("Bucky") Harris, the youthful manager of the Senators, who has piloted his team to two successive American league pennants, has signed a three-year contract, according to word telegraphed to Washington today by Clark Griffith, the club owner. Griffith and Harris are in Tampa, Fla.

While the details were not made public, it is understood Harris' new contract calls for $100,000 for the three year period. Last year he is said to have received $25,000.

SPRINTERS DUEL
IN NEWARK GAMES

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Another duel between Allan Helfrich, national champion at 880 yards, and "Pinkie" Sober, who has beaten him twice in as many races, will take place tonight in the feature event of the St. Joseph Catholic club games in games in Newark.

Walter Mulvihill, sensational Holy Cross runner, and Johnny Holden also are scheduled to start in the race. Chet Bowman, former Syracuse star; Louis Clarke, Eldon Sundstrom, New England schoolboy, and several others will compete in the sprints.

Buckeye League
Is Reorganized

Adoption of a plan of reorganization and the laying of the groundwork for a financial system which promises to put the organization on a firm financial basis were the outstanding features of the business meeting of the League of Ohio Sportsmen at the Chittenden hotel, Columbus, yesterday.

Three Columbian County Fish and Game Protective association delegates attended the conference: Attorney Frank Grosshans, representing the county governing board; J. S. Lambing, of the East Liverpool-Wellsville branch, and John L. King, of the Salem branch.

Attorney Grosshans was named a member of the league resolutions committee.

A banquet concluded the program last night. I. S. Myers, of Akron, was named president of the league for the coming year.

Fight Results

At New York—Marty Collins, New York, got the decision over Angel Diaz, Cuba, four rounds. Bobby Robideau, Allentown, Pa., and Eddie Elkins, New York, fought a draw, four rounds. Andy Di Vodi, Brooklyn, got the decision over Paul Gulotta, Brooklyn, four rounds. Mickey Petrolia, New York, knocked out Dave Imberman, Cleveland, second round.

TWO FLOOR GAMES ARE POSTPONED

The St. Stephens-Lutherans Sunday school league game scheduled for Friday night has been postponed indefinitely, league officers announced today.

Two exhibition contests, however, will be staged on that evening at the Y. M. C. A. court. M. E. will play the Christians and the Presbyterians will take on the Penn Avenue outfit.

Little Edna Hibbard Saucy Vamp In 'Ladies of Evening'

Actress Often Wishes She Could be in Some Snug Corner at Home, Says Belasco Show Star.

"There are times in the life of an actress when she wishes she could be in some snug corner at home and feels that if she could only once get into such a comfortable spot, she would never leave it," remarked little Edna Hibbard, the saucy vamp of "Ladies of the Evening" coming to the Ceramic theatre on Thursday. "That has happened to me more than once in traveling around the country. It was more so in the beginning of my stage career, when I was doing one-night stands with 'Officer 666' and some other plays. I think you can imagine how a young girl who has just left a very comfortable home feels when, after waiting up to her waist in snow, reaches the desolate looking hotel of the small town and then finds a most cheerless room awaiting her.

"When I first went on the road there was enough novelty in the life to more than compensate for the hardships I endured, but after a season of two much of the novelty wore off and then playing became a serious profession. There was little of the glamour left; the hardships became more apparent.

"One time—it was during the tour of 'Officer 666'—we played a number of the smaller towns in Texas. One of them was a wild spot called Mexico. It was a cattle town; a sort of depot where the gentle longhorns were driven in from the big ranches and shipped to Chicago and Kansas City. It may have developed since then into a metropolis, but at that time it was certainly wild and woolly.

"We gave our performance, which was well attended, and after packing our trunks and getting ready for the move to the next town, one of the other girls and I started for the hotel. As we passed one of the restaurants there was a sound of loud voices and two cowboys came out and began shooting at each other. We were scared blue and took to our heels. Of course, we ran in the wrong direction. In a little while we discovered that we were lost. When we didn't turn up at the hotel, the men of the company, aided by some of the hotel people and the police, began a search for us. They found us sitting on the front doorstep of one of the worst joints in town, almost dead with fright and waiting for daylight to find our way back."

To Halt Corn Thieves.

LONDON, O.—To stop the depredations of corn thieves, Charles Kellar, Mechanicburg farmer and former druggist, has proposed a method for "doping" corn in such a manner that any person stealing from cribs will be detected when he attempts to market the corn. The concoction is said to be harmless, but of a nature that will make identification simple.

Heat Extracted From Atom, Fuel Solution

Toronto.—Fuel so powerful that an ordinary truck load of it would be sufficient to heat all the buildings of downtown Toronto an entire winter was predicted by Prof. J. C. McEwen, head of the department of physics at the University of Toronto and authority on helium and the atomic theory.

"We know there is a tremendous amount of energy bound up in the atoms of all substances," he stated, "and already we are commencing to get inklings of the manner in which this may be obtained." He pointed out that it should be theoretically possible to begin with hydrogen and instead of destroying only part of the matter and producing helium, to destroy the whole and so obtain nothing but mechanical power. He said by so doing, heat sufficient to bring four cubic miles of water to the boiling point could be generated from a quantity of hydrogen whose cubic size would be no larger than that of the human body.

Already this transformation is taking place in nature, he said, the foremost example being the stars.

Q. How should oil be applied to a baseball bat? H. N.

A. A small amount of natural oil should be applied to a baseball bat and rubbed in with a bone. After it is thoroughly rubbed in, the bat should be put away in a cool dry place. If it is boned once a week from now until spring the bat should be in good condition.

Q. Where are there memorials to Abraham Lincoln? J. A. W.

A. There are innumerable memorials erected to Abraham Lincoln throughout the United States and also in other parts of the world. The most noteworthy include those at Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Illinois University, Lincoln Hall, Springfield, Illinois; Muskegon, Michigan; Newark, New Jersey, and Washington, D. C. Statues at the National Capitol, the City Hall, Lincoln Park and Lincoln Memorial, also at London and Edinburgh.

Q. Can nuts be called fruits? C. T. A.

A. In botany the fruit of a flowering plant is the matured seed vessel and its contents together with such accessory parts as become finally incorporated with them. Thus in a botanical sense not only apples, grapes, etc., but all berries, nuts, grains, beans, pumpkins, cucumbers, etc., are fruits. Popular usage has become much narrower. The grains have been dropped and the tendency is to drop nuts also, so that a fruit is now generally understood to be the fleshy, juicy product of some plant which when ripe is edible without cooking and adapted to use as a dessert.

Q. Where was the first modern hippodrome built and how large was it? G. E.

A. The first indoor circus of modern times was built at Paris in 1843. It was built entirely of wood, the arena was 108 metres long and 104 wide and it had a seating capacity of 15,000 persons. This was destroyed by fire in 1870.

Q. What is the national forest 10 per cent fund? L. H.

A. The act of August 10, 1912, gave 10 per cent of the national forest receipts to the Forest Service for the construction of roads and trails within the forests. This amounted to $497,181.57 for the fiscal year 1925. To the present time the 10 per cent fund has amounted to $5,088,330.54.

Q. Did any of England's pipe organs survive the time of Cromwell? R. H. W.

A. In England there are no remains of organs constructed during the mediaeval period. Andsey says: "Owing to the general destruction of organs in time of Cromwell, we have no conception of the richness of the church organs during the 15th and 16th centuries. The more beautiful and richly decorated the organs, the more completely they were destroyed."

Q. What was the last composition played by Haydn? F. E.

A. Five days before his death, Haydn was carried to his piano. He played his own hymn to the emperor. This was the last time he touched his instrument.
